

Heil Outlines Sales Drive to Help Farmers

Urges 2-Year Adver- tising Campaign to Sell Products

DISCUSSES PLAN

Hits at 'Young Man From Campus' for Story In U. W. Daily

Madison, Wis.—(AP)—A spirited, aggressive, two-year advertising campaign to promote markets for Wisconsin cheese and other agricultural products was envisioned today following Governor-elect Julius P. Heil's assertion that the state was spending insufficient monies to advance the sale of its farm output.

Heil, who has consistently attempted to pare down budget allotments during the last two weeks, reversed his course suddenly yesterday when Ralph M. Ammon, director of the department of agriculture and markets, asked for an appropriation of $75,000 for dairy advertising next year.

"This all brings me back to the department of commerce," Heil said impatiently. "What does that department do anyway?"

"We must set up the right instrument to market our yearly production of $346,000,000 worth of farm products," he added. "The poverty-stricken farmer has to get higher prices for his products."

Lashes at Critic
Digressing at this point to answer an article which he said appeared in the University of Wisconsin Daily Cardinal, student newspaper, Heil declared:

"I wish the young man from the campus who called me a 'brainless idiot' would tell me how to do it. (Heil referred to an adequate farm advertising program.) I wish they would help an old fool—these kids who live here on the taxpayer's dollars and who are so smart and sarcastic. I am going to call that young man before me and if he is not from the state, I am going to kick him out of school."

"It only makes my blood boil, and when it comes to dishing out funds for the university for keeping these kids on the campus, I won't be so free. And I hope this goes back to the university."

Returning to the budget appropriation, Heil said: "This $75,000 doesn't even begin to scratch the surface."

"We are going to put over Wisconsin like it has never been put over before. That $75,000 is not enough money."

"Greatest Product"
"You have the greatest product in the world, and all you have to do is sell it."

"The important thing is to put this advertising instrument in the right spot. It should be in a spot where it has nothing to do but look after the marketing of all farm products."

"We are going to have cheese at all state fairs, county fairs, conventions and every other place where large numbers of people gather. We have to decide now whether we are order-takers or salesmen."

"I don't believe $75,000 is enough, but I am not going to raise it or make any suggestions before I talk it over with the legislators."

Heil said he had prevailed upon the managements of three large Milwaukee department stores to advertise and give cheese as Christmas presents this year.

"I played rummy with all of them, and I won," he declared.

William G. Bruce, Milwaukee, chairman of the Deep Waterways commission, asked for an appropriation of $4,500 to foster Wisconsin's interests in connection with the development of the proposed St. Lawrence waterway. Heil indicated he would approve the allotment—which was the same as last year. He also appeared favorable to

Two Killed and Six Injured in Smashup; Probes are Launched

Racine—(AP)—Two investigations were being conducted today into the head-on collision in dense smoke of two automobiles which brought death to two prominent Racine men and injuries to six others.

Edward W. Rapps, 65, director of a loan and investment company, and George Northrup, 65, former owner of a furniture company, were killed instantly yesterday as the cars met near the Racine airport.

Mrs. Rapps, 60, sustained internal injuries, head lacerations and back injuries, and was reported near death, as was the fourth passenger in the Rapps car, Mrs. Mae Wackerhagen, 71, Racine club woman, severely about the head.

In the other car were Adelbert Tovey, 38, Chicago; George Tovey, 65, Chicago; James Ryan, 54, Union Grove, and his nephew, James Ryan, 5, also of Union Grove.

Investigations were launched by the sheriff and coroner's offices as traffic officers and others reported long grass was burning at the highway, and that smoke blanketed the road. Sergeant Louis Ziska said there were no skid marks on the highway.

FAVORED FOR POST

The name of WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins (above) is being mentioned most frequently in discussion at Washington regarding a successor to Commerce Secretary Daniel Roper, who has resigned his position. President Roosevelt, however, said today he has not decided upon cabinet replacements.

Board of Control Asks $5,848,160 For Next 2 Years

Proposes to Spend $2,613,850 for New Buildings at Institutions

Madison—(AP)—The state board of control, whose functions will be transferred completely to three separate departments after Jan. 1, today renewed its request for additional building space at the penal and charitable institutions.

John J. Hannan, president of the board, submitted to Governor-elect Julius P. Heil a tentative budget of $5,848,160, of which $2,613,850 would be used for new buildings. Included was a request for an increase of approximately 20 percent in the allotments made for operation of the institutions, which would grant salary increases to 441 employees.

The board of control was reorganized by the 1937 legislature. Two new departments of corrections and mental hygiene were created to take over the prisons and the state hospitals. By executive order, under the reorganization act, Governor LaFollette recently created the state department of social adjustment, which absorbs all remaining functions of the old board, including the administration of social security aids.

U. S. Favors Reduction In Barriers to Trade

Lima, Peru—(AP)—The United States, after obtaining the unanimous consent of the other 20 American republics, today presented to the Pan-American conference a sweeping resolution calling for reduction of barriers to international trade.

The resolution is expected to receive speedy formal conference acceptance.

The United States obtained this show of unanimity at a time when Argentine suspicion of Washington's future foreign policy appeared likely to become a strong factor in conference developments.

The trade resolution declared against "excessive barriers," whether in the form of unreasonable high tariffs; quotas; licenses; exchange controls and other types of quantitative restriction; methods of administering commercial, exchange and monetary policies which impair the maintenance of all foreign suppliers."

temporary step to still growing fears among Carlists, a separate monarchial group, and followers of Alfonso that the insurgent regime had no intention of putting a king back on the throne.

In any event, as soon as the decision was known, widespread credence was given here to reports published yesterday from Morocco that Franco, had sent a mission to Rome to discuss the monarchy question with the Infante Don Juan, Alfonso's youngest son.

Alfonso left the throne April 14, 1931, during a bloodless revolt which brought about the Spanish republic (now represented by the Basque and Valencia government against which the Franco insurgents are warring).

It was reported a year ago that Franco might agree to Prince Juan, rather than Alfonso himself, for a king of insurgent-held territory.

Another group, however, declared that Franco took only a

Relief May be Distributed on Road Aid Plan

Senator Byrnes Dissatisfied With 'Blank Check' Method

ACTION PROBABLE

Claims WPA Spent More In New York Than in Southern Area

Washington—(AP)—Congressional circles heard today the administration may support a proposal for distributing relief funds on a formula somewhat similar to that used for federal road grants.

Senator Byrnes (D-S. C.), pilot of relief appropriation bills in the senate, already has made known his dissatisfaction with the present "blank check" method of distributing funds. The president and WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins now have final determination of allocations.

Byrnes contends the WPA has spent more in New York city than in a number of southern states with greater total population. He is understood to be working on a plan which will take into account not only population but the need for relief and the extent of the areas in which aid funds are to be administered.

This would follow, in general, the principle laid down by congress to govern distribution of road funds.

Cooperation Sought
In addition, the Byrnes plan would call for greater cooperation between the states and the federal government in administration of relief funds. It would offer the possibility that states might be asked to contribute 25 per cent toward their relief outlay or demonstrate they are unable to do so.

Because of this latter feature, Republican senate leaders gave clear indications today they would wait the administration's agreement on a concrete program before renewing their perennial proposal to turn administration of relief back to the states.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) said a Republican program would be presented but made it plain that if this fails to win approval, he would support any "reasonable" Democratic proposal placing more restrictions on relief spending.

The minority party's plan, Vandenberg said, will call for:

1. Consideration by the states of the relative need of direct and work relief.
2. Giving the states the final decision on how available relief funds are to be spent.
3. Requiring reasonable matching of relief funds by the states to clinch the central authority over their expenditures.

Try to Rescue 18 Wreck Survivors

Gales and High Seas Keep Group Marooned On Beach

Juneau, Alaska—(AP)—Rescue parties, fighting wintry gales and raging seas, raced against time today to reach 18 survivors of the stranded motorship Patterson, marooned on the beach near Cape Fairweather.

The shipwrecked sailors sent word to the coast guard cutter Haida, standing by the wreckage of their craft, last night by means of an improvised flashlight signal system that all were weak from exposure and sore feet and that they had enough food to last two more days.

Two of their members are sick, they reported. Two others of the crew perished when the veteran Alaskan whaling ship went aground early Monday morning.

Pilot Sheldon Simmons, who attempted to fly three guides to the spot yesterday to aid the party, was forced back to Juneau by a heavy sleet storm.

The guides were taken aboard the coast guard patrol boat Morris, a shallow craft vessel, which Captain Sam Sandvik, veteran halibuter, said he believed he could pilot to within seven miles of the wreck scene.

Grand Duke Vladimir Sees Possibility of Gaining Russ Throne

Paris—(AP)—Grand Duke Vladimir, pretender to the non-existent throne of Russia, conferred with his aids in Paris today after having been told that Adolf Hitler's drive to the east may have given him a chance to regain the throne of his forefathers.

The 21-year-old grand duke, who has never been in Russia, found his loyal subjects in Paris divided in an uproar of Russian argument over his projected trip to Germany.

Vladimir's associates told all inquirers he was going to visit his sister, Grand Duchess Kira, for the Christmas holidays, pointing out that he made the trip almost every year.

There are some who think Hitler might pick the grand duke as a candidate for the throne of a new Ukrainian state and who think it is a good idea.

This group supports the theory of one of the lesser known white Russian newspapers in Paris, Vo roszdeme, which apparently put a been in Vladimir's bonnet by publishing an article on the subject.

Others think it is a bad idea. Some do not believe Hitler would espouse his cause. Others do not believe his czar should play ball with a man they consider unacceptable.

Vladimir arrived yesterday from London where he has been living.

Bodies of Chicago Couple Recovered From Lake Como

Coroner Orders Inquest And Clears Way for Post Mortem

Elkhorn, Wis.—(AP)—The body of Fred Hirschmann of Chicago, who with his wife disappeared while on a fishing trip Nov. 18, was recovered from Lake Como today. Mrs. Hirschmann's body was found in the lake yesterday.

Hirschmann's body was found near the spot at which an ice skater discovered Mrs. Hirschmann's. Mrs. Hirschmann's body lay in 4 feet of water. Her husband's was taken from water 16 feet deep.

Elmer Chamberlain of Lake Geneva, who had been searching the lake for the last two weeks, skated over a dark spot in the ice near the north shore yesterday. He stopped and made an examination, with recovery of Mrs. Hirschmann's body resulting. It was at that point that county authorities centered their search for Hirschmann today.

Leroy Muzzy of Lake Geneva found Hirschmann's body on an undertaking establishment at Lake Geneva. Coroner William F. Best swore in a jury to conduct an inquest and instructed Dr. E. D. Hudson of Lake Geneva, assigned to examine the bodies, to perform a post mortem if he found anything indicating the couple did not drown.

A relative of the couple said that a Chicago medium went to the lake yesterday and said Mrs. Hirschmann's body would be found that day and her husband's today, adding that the "case will be cleaned by Dec. 18."

Heil and Wiley are Honored at Banquet By Milwaukee Group

Milwaukee—(AP)—More than 400 persons, representing big and little business, paid their respects at a non-political banquet last night to Governor-elect Julius P. Heil, United States Senator-elect Alexander Wiley, and Congressman-elect Lewis D. Thill of the Fifth district and John C. Schafer of the Fourth district.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee told the group:

"I want to say to these new officials—and I feel I speak also for the council—we will give full cooperation to make this city, state and nation better. Particularly in a democracy, we must get behind our officials. They need our help because of their responsibilities."

Heil said "in the campaign the mayor said something that hurt my ears, but I bear no ill will toward anyone. I made a campaign of friendship. I won the hearts and souls of the people. I want to forgive and forget. . . . I'll be fair with the people at Madison, but if anyone double crosses me he'll be out looking for a job."

Fond du Lac Policemen Fight Burglar Suspects

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Central Wisconsin authorities were asked today to be on the alert for three men who engaged in a running gunfight with Fond du Lac policemen who stopped them last night for questioning about an attempt to loot the Nuss Lumber and Supply company safe.

Burglars failed to break into the safe last night when they touched off a tear gas bomb as they knocked off the combination dial.

Traffic Officers Jerome Wright and James Silgen, Jr., investigated and then began a tour of industrial plants in the belief the men might have attempted another burglary.

They observed a suspicious automobile near the Bechaud brewery and gave chase, finally trapping it. The driver produced a driver's license bearing the name of a Deer River, Minn., man. As the policemen peered into the back seat, the car shot away.

Silgen and Wright gave chase. A man in the rear seat of the car opened fire and Silgen fired four times in return. The policemen lost the trail in North Fond du Lac.

Rightists in France Want Curbon Reds

Issue Demand for Dissolu- tion of Communist Party in Nation

CAMPAIGN IN PRESS

Daladier Striving to Win Approval of His Huge Budget

Paris—(AP)—Right-wing parties on which Premier Daladier depends for the life of his government issued a united demand through their newspapers today for dissolution of the French communist party.

A total of 430 Paris and provincial papers, ranging from mildly conservative to the extreme right, were said to have joined in the "appeal to parliament and the government."

The move came as Daladier was seeking to put France's $3,885,000,000 franc ($2,441,000,000) budget through the chamber of deputies ahead of more controversial issues which might endanger his shaky majority.

Limit Debate
He succeeded last night in getting chairman of chamber party groups to limit the budget debate to 68 hours, about one hour of discussion for each $37,000,000 of expenditures, so the deputies could complete their action Dec. 23.

Some of the newspapers demanding the communist dissolution represented parties which long have been at each other's throats.

The appeal played the communist party as one which "seeks both civil and foreign war and which is only an agent of the soviet union," and accused the communist of sabotaging France's national defense, fomenting strikes and "of arousing French workmen against foreign states."

It concluded:

"It is up to the government to take decisions according to the law to insure the safety of the nation. Eighteen European nations have dissolved the communist party in order to become masters in their own house. We must do likewise."

Dies Group Maps 5-Point Program

Will Make Recommendations on Ending Sub- versive Influences

Washington—(AP)—The house committee on un-American activities will recommend to congress next month a five-point program designed to control subversive influences in the United States.

The committee ended four months of testimony yesterday. Informed persons said today it would suggest:

1. Stricter immigration laws, with requirements that aliens entering the country say whether they believe in the American form of government.
2. Strict enforcement of the deportation laws.
3. Regulations that organizations shown conclusively to be "un-American" file with the government an accounting of their finances, activities and directors.
4. Outlawing of all such organizations as soon as possible.
5. Regulations that persons who join political organizations use their real names; that a list of members be kept available for possible government inspection.

The committee members, headed by Representative Dies (D-Texas) have started summarizing the testimony of about 150 witnesses. Their report probably will be issued just before congress meets Jan. 3.

Dies said the committee members—with one possible exception he did not name—would ask the new congress to continue the inquiry.

County Boards to Seek Increased State Aids

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin County Boards association announced today that increased state aids from gasoline taxes and automobile license fees will be made an issue at the annual road school to be held in Milwaukee Jan. 22-26.

The association previously announced it will ask the 1939 legislature to raise the $3,000,000 allotment now set aside by statute for state aids to build and maintain county trunk highway.

Officials of the association said that since the present highway distribution law was enacted in 1931, the building of county highways has shown a substantial increase, as compared with a decline in state trunk mileage, but the counties' allotments for maintenance of their roads have not been raised.

350 Union Members Stay Away From Work

Detroit—(AP)—Approximately 350 unionized employees of the Chrysler Corporation refused to go to work today in the corporation's Highland Park plant as a result of a dispute concerning the rehiring of employees with seniority ratings.

Edward Hertz, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) local No. 490, said the local had voted not to work more than 32 hours a week until the dispute is settled.

"This is not a strike," he said. "It is a protest."

The plant, employing approximately 2,700 men, continued to operate.

Family of Four Children With Jobless Dad Hopes Good Fellows Will Swell Christmas Basket Fund

Another day has rolled by and the Good Fellows fund still is a long way from having enough money to do much toward providing a happy Christmas for Appleton's needy families. Yesterday's contributions amounted to $23.25, raising the total received thus far to only $63. That is scarcely one-tenth of the amount needed to provide baskets for only the very neediest of the needy and there still would be many families that could not be helped.

No fault can be found with the size of the contributions. A great many people are donating $3, which is about the average cost of a basket, but there aren't very many Good Fellows. A lot more folks will have to make Good Fellows of themselves before Christmas if the poor in Appleton are to have any help.

There are so many families in desperate circumstances that it is extremely difficult to determine which are the most needy, but now and then an outstanding situation presents itself and there isn't any question about including the family among the most needy.

Take the case of Mr. X for instance. There are four children in the family, ranging from six years to one year. When an investigator visited the home recently he found the mother in tears; there was absolutely no fuel in the house and nothing except a few slices of bread to eat. The father was out trying to find employment. WPA was laying off men—there wasn't a chance there—and private employment offered no hope. There wasn't a single penny in the family.

Three years ago Mr. X had a fairly good job and was getting along fairly well. Then misfortune struck. A five year old daughter became ill, and more than $700 of savings was spent to pay doctors and hospitals to no avail. The youngest died. Shortly afterward the father lost his job—through no fault of his own.

Siam Defense Minister Is Appointed Premier

Bangkok, Siam—(AP)—Colonel Luang Bhipl Songgram, defense minister and head of the dominant militarist clique, today was named premier by the regency council.

He succeeded Phya Bhalo Bolabanya Sena and his appointment was expected to bring drastic changes in the personnel and policies of the government, which hitherto has leaned strongly toward friendship with and reliance on Britain.

Sena and his cabinet stepped out yesterday as a new session of parliament convened.

Songgram has advocated a strongly-defended neutrality and his defense ministry has absorbed more than a quarter of the budget. By implication at least he has argued for less reliance on Britain, although Siamese leaders have denied that this necessarily would mean closer ties with Japan.

Janesville Murder Case Goes to Trial Dec. 21

Janesville—(AP)—District Attorney John H. Matheson announced yesterday that Allen Smith, 42, of Beloit, would go on trial in circuit court Dec. 21 on a charge of murder.

The charge grew out of the death of Smith's wife, Mabel, 31, who was found dead in an automobile last Aug. 6. Matheson said the case would be heard by Judge Jesse Earle without a jury.

Polish Waitress Recognized As 'Venus of Turnip Patch'

Paris—(AP)—Anna, a very mundane but lovely Polish waitress, was recognized officially today as the model for the "Venus of the turnip patch."

The storm-center statue found in a farmer's backyard was declared no relic of antiquity, as some of France's leading art experts had believed it to be.

A jury of national education ministry officials announced that grave deliberation had convinced them a young Italian sculptor had modeled the statue after Anna and then buried it.

The young sculptor, 31-year-old Francesco Cremonese, made the statue out of marble, deliberately backed off some of the limbs and the nose to make it appear ancient, and then buried it. He is proud of the fact. He admits he did it to win attention.

In addition to the jury's verdict, Jean Thollier, expert who started

F. Donald Coster Shoots Self at Country Mansion

LONG RECORD

George Vernard Is Re- vealed as Dead Man's Younger Brother

New York—(AP)—The United States attorney's office announced today that correspondence between F. Donald Coster, who shot himself in his Connecticut home, and Harry McKenzie, described as a prominent political leader in that state had been seized at the McKesson and Robbins plant in Bridgeport, Conn., yesterday. There was no elaboration of the statement.

Fairfield, Conn.—(AP)—F. Donald Coster, indicted president of the vast McKesson and Robbins Drug corporation who had been disclosed as a former convict with a criminal record going back more than a quarter of a century, shot and killed himself today at his country mansion near here.

Federal authorities were on the way at the time to the luxurious Coster home to re-arrest him.

Fully-dressed, Coster went into the bathroom, pressed a pistol to his right ear, and pulled the trigger.

Seek Fourth Brother
Gregory F. Noonan, acting United States attorney, disclosed today there was a fourth brother, Robert, who will be arrested in the case. Robert, an employee of McKesson and Robbins, was on his way to New York from New Haven.

Coster-Musica had lived in Fairfield for about ten years, but had taken little part in the town's community affairs. His life, fellow residents said, centered chiefly on his 123-foot yacht, Carolina.

To the people who knew Coster-Musica in New York and in Fairfield he was a man of impeccable reputation, a rather good-looking immaculately groomed man of middle age with white hair and white mustache.

First reports indicated Mrs. Coster had seen her husband with the pistol but had been powerless to restrain him. She collapsed afterward.

Samuel Reich, an attorney, rushed from the home as soon as he heard what had happened, put his hand to his head, pointed with a finger as though it were a pistol, and shouted:

"He shot himself! He shot himself!"

Investigators were told that three weeks ago Coster—who formerly was Philip Musica, a former convict, until he made an almost incredible change in his name, his associations and his whole life—had indicated an intention to take his own life and that his three pistols had been secreted in the family garage by a chauffeur.

The investigation into the $87,000,000 drug firm which Coster headed had not begun at that time—an investigation of an apparent $18,000,000 overstatement of assets.

Art Gorman, an assistant federal attorney in New Haven, Conn., arrived at the front door of the Coster home, only to hear the shot that ended Coster's life.

New York—(AP)—F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., whose real identity was disclosed as Philip Musica, a former convict who became head of the multi-million dollar corporation, shot and killed himself today at his home in Fairfield, Conn.

News that Coster-Musica had taken his own life came shortly after the United States attorney's office here ordered his re-arrest and that of George E. Dietrich, assistant treasurer, and George Vernard, Canadian agent for the firm on charges of violating the securities act of 1934.

Retaliatory Action Hinted to Germany In U. S. Protests

Washington—(AP)—Diplomatic tension between the United States and Germany mounted today as hints that retaliatory measures might be invoked if American property rights in the reich are jeopardized further by anti-Jewish and other confiscatory decrees.

This possibility came to light as the United States renewed its seven-month-old quest for adequate, written assurances from Germany that American citizens will not be discriminated against because of their race or creed. The request law was so drawn as to cover the rights of both Catholic and Jews.

Meanwhile, Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London, arrived in the United States to confer with President Roosevelt. He expressed himself in New York yesterday as being "not particularly optimistic about the outlook for peace in Europe—but I don't think that's any reason for not trying."

Hopkins Favored As Successor to Secretary Roper

WPA Chief's Name Frequently Mentioned for Cabinet Post

Washington—(P)—Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator and an intimate presidential adviser, received most frequent mention today in capital discussion of a successor to Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper.

President Roosevelt said this morning that he had not yet made up his mind on cabinet replacements.

Also asked at his press conference whether any more resignations in the cabinet were in prospect, Mr. Roosevelt said there were none he knew of.

He was asked, too, about reports Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan would receive some high government position. The president responded there were many such reports.

Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) said in a statement, meanwhile, that if Hopkins were appointed to the cabinet it would not be a promotion but a move to prevent congressional investigation of his scandalous handling of relief.

Rumors At Capital

There have been rumors for several weeks that still other members of the president's official family might retire or be shifted to other positions. Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary Swanson of the navy have been mentioned in that connection.

If Hopkins is appointed, one Democratic senator who asked anonymously declared it would be a "built up" for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination.

One of the obstacles he undoubtedly would have to overcome in winning senate confirmation for a cabinet post would be the opposition of various Republican and anti-administration Democratic senators who have disagreed sharply with his methods of administering the WPA.

Hopkins was not the only person whose name figured in capital speculation over the commerce secretaryship. Among those mentioned were Richard C. Patterson, former labor executive who recently became assistant secretary in the department, and Ernest G. Draper, former assistant secretary now on the federal reserve board.

Bearing On Business

The type of man the president selects for the position may indicate the degree to which he has adopted a conciliatory attitude toward business. His appointment of a new attorney general also may have some bearing on that point.

Many persons here to practice law will be elevated to Cummings' position. Roper's resignation was announced at the White House yesterday afternoon. The secretary said he desired to devote more time to personal affairs, and reiterated his devotion of the administration's objectives. Friends reported criticism from some New Dealers who considered him too conservative had hastened his decision to retire.

It was learned that after a trip to his native South Carolina Roper would return here to practice law. Until a new secretary is chosen, the commerce department will be directed by J. Monroe Johnson, senior assistant secretary.

Delegation of Authority Irks

Business and Labor Leaders Attack Administrative Agencies

Chicago—(P)—Congressional delegation of authority to administrative agencies was attacked last night by a business spokesman and a labor leader as being inimical to the interests of labor, industry and the public.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and George H. Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, expressed their common viewpoint from the same platform at the Economic club.

Green said the interest of labor, industry and the public could be served best "through congressional regulation rather than through administrative regulation."

"Statutory regulation makes definite and clear the standards which those who own and manage business must meet and upon which they can build for the future," he said, adding that business men have been subjected to "an undue restraining influence" recently by government bureaus in the industrial field.

Davis said business sentiment indicated that business would force ahead if congress relieved it of restrictions which "are holding it back." He suggested as one means of relief:

"Repeat the laws that make heads of bureaus rule-makers, prosecutors and judges—and not compel business men to try and discover from their morning papers the latest regulations under which they may operate their business that day."

Pageantry, Pomp Feature at White House Diplomatic Party

BY BETH CAMPBELL

Washington—(P)—They call it the No. 1 party of the capital's social whirl—the grandest official social function in the United States—officially the White House diplomatic reception.

It took place again last night, in all its pageantry and pomp and glittering splendor.

While other guests appeared at the east entrance and handed their admission cards to White House policemen, the honored diplomats in elaborate uniforms went through the WPA.

Hopkins was not the only person whose name figured in capital speculation over the commerce secretaryship. Among those mentioned were Richard C. Patterson, former labor executive who recently became assistant secretary in the department, and Ernest G. Draper, former assistant secretary now on the federal reserve board.

"Statutory regulation makes definite and clear the standards which those who own and manage business must meet and upon which they can build for the future," he said, adding that business men have been subjected to "an undue restraining influence" recently by government bureaus in the industrial field.

Davis said business sentiment indicated that business would force ahead if congress relieved it of restrictions which "are holding it back." He suggested as one means of relief:

"Repeat the laws that make heads of bureaus rule-makers, prosecutors and judges—and not compel business men to try and discover from their morning papers the latest regulations under which they may operate their business that day."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and George H. Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, expressed their common viewpoint from the same platform at the Economic club.

Green said the interest of labor, industry and the public could be served best "through congressional regulation rather than through administrative regulation."

Army, navy and marine aides in dress uniforms directed the diplomats up the marble stairway, where a red velvet rope separated them from the other guests.

Past the red-coated band in the reception hall the line moved to the east room, where the envoys stood under the great chandeliers until they could be received by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Shortly after 9 p. m., the Marine band struck up "Hail to the Chief," and guests at their various stations knew that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were leading the cabinet procession from the state dining room.

The president, in white tie and tails, and the first lady, in a simple blue crepe gown with a flaring accordion-pleated skirt, took their places in front of a bank of palms in the oval blue room. An aide announced each guest by name as they shook hands.

The line moved swiftly into the state dining room.

Most of the envoys chatted briefly in the crowded dining room. A few had punch or munched a few small cakes, cookies and nuts on the long rose-decorated table. Only a few stayed for dancing in the east room.

Heil Advocates State Campaign To Help Farmers

a request for $33,000, presented by Gordon Gunderson of the farm home credit administration.

The governor-elect said he would give due consideration to requests of the Wisconsin Beekeepers' association, the County Fairs association, the Wisconsin Agricultural Experimental association, the livestock breeders, the horticultural society, horse breeders, potato growers, state dairymen's association, and the poultry breeder's association. Their requests ranged from $2,000 to $8,000 each.

DIKSTRA'S COMMENT

Madison—(P)—Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, asserted today that the student who wrote the letter published by the Daily Cardinal, calling Governor-elect Julius P. Heil, a "brainless idiot," exercised neither intelligence nor good taste.

The new governor, when advised of the letter at yesterday's budget hearings, got "boiling mad" and said he was going to have the student expelled if he is not a resident of the state.

In a formal statement today President Dykstra said: "It is unfortunate that freedom of speech and freedom of the press sometimes results in an individual expression of plague and animus which gets publicity all out of proportion to the individual who utters it."

"The Cardinal is a student controlled paper and it prints letters to the editor as do many papers without taking responsibility for the sentiments expressed. This was the case in a recent letter appearing in the Cardinal, which attacked Governor-elect Heil."

"The day before, however, a Daily Cardinal editorial spoke generously and responsibly about the incoming governor."

"The last sentence read: 'For all we know the university may be saying 'God bless you' to Governor-elect Heil.'"

"I hope Mr. Heil will see the editorial. It is a representative sentiment. The letter which appeared was the work of an individual and was neither intelligent nor in good taste."

Frock-coated, goateed Mr. Bruce, who has been leading Wisconsin's somewhat discouraging fight for the waterway project for a decade and a half, appeared before Governor-Elect Julius P. Heil to report that a new Canadian-American treaty for the seaway will be promulgated by the United States senate at the forthcoming session of congress, and that the president is hopeful of ratification.

Bruce asked for a continuation of the state appropriation of $4,500 a year for the state committee to agitate for the project. Heil said he would approve the request.

Such a treaty was defeated in the senate two years ago, Bruce recalled, when it failed to receive a two-thirds vote.

Drug Firm Chief, Former Convict, Takes Own Life

lapse of its United States Hair company, Philip's father, Antonio, tried to end his life.

Coster-Musica's suicide climaxed a week of dizzy developments, starting when it was discovered the crude drugs department of McKesson and Robbins, under his direct supervision, had apparently built up fictitious assets of $18,000,000.

The man who lived down a criminal past of 25 years ago to become head of the great drug firm turned a pistol on himself as Chief of Police Arthur Bennett was arriving at the Coster's big country home to take him into custody.

Developments today showed that Vernard was Musica's younger brother, Arthur, and federal authorities held it likely that Dietrich was a second brother who dropped from sight after the crash of the Musica finances years ago. They also were taking the possibility that Mrs. Coster also might have had another name in her younger years. The Costers were childless.

Sought Missing Money

Coster, or Musica, became head of the McKesson and Robbins firm in 1926, made the business eminently successful and was coasting along in splendor and brilliance until his treasurer's suspicion that all was not well in the crude drugs department started a quiet investigation which brought the firm into federal court a week ago with a petition for reorganization.

With listed assets of $87,000,000, it became increasingly evident through state and federal inquiries in the last week that at least $18,000,000 of these assets were unaccounted for or perhaps non-existent. But it was not until Inspector John J. Donovan reached the files of an old side-street police station that Coster's real identity came to light.

Coster's past was brilliant, but the new career he had chosen for himself as a respectable corporation head, widely known in Wall street, was even more brilliant.

Created "Career"

In "Who's Who in America" he gave himself American birth, new parents, and the Heidelberg degrees of doctor of philosophy and doctor of medicine. There was no hint that he was the son of a Neapolitan barber, who emigrated to the east side of New York.

As the federal government and the New York state government proceeded apace with their investigations today there were mounting conjectures as to what Coster had done in the years just prior to 1926 when his gracious manner and beaming personality persuaded Connecticut bankers to back him with $1,000,000 to take over the McKesson firm.

That is, between 1920 when a charge of subordination of perjury arising out of a notorious murder case investigation was dismissed against him and the time when he emerged as the ultra-respectable head of Girard and Company, a Mount Vernon, N. Y., drug manufacturing concern.

Past Revealed

Stripped of his garb as a Wall street financier of impeccable past, Coster stood revealed today as the man who was:

Convicted of grand larceny 25 years ago in the collapse of the million-dollar United States Hair company;

Convicted in federal court of customs duty fraud, in 1909 fined $5,000, sentenced to a year in prison, then pardoned by President Taft after serving six months;

Arrested in 1920 on a charge of perjury, growing out of a notorious murder case investigation, released on bail, later discharged.

With these revelations to guide them, investigators moved ahead today in their attempts to discover what happened to $18,000,000 of McKesson and Robbins assets which their search thus far has failed to disclose.

As four investigations went on, from Washington came an announcement from Brien McMahon, assistant United States attorney general, that the justice department was investigating leads indicating Coster "had engaged in shipping arms and munitions to belligerent countries in cases labeled 'milk of magnesia.'"

In New York, United States Attorney

ADmits SHOOTING

Marlin Snyder, known to Broadway and Chicago as "Colonel Gimp," told a Los Angeles superior court he shot Myrl Alderman, pianist and new husband of Ruth Etting, in self-defense. Snyder, shown on the witness stand, said he never had any intention of killing the singer who was his wife for 17 years.

torney Gregory Noonan declared the indictment against Coster and his companions "just scratches the surface."

From James J. Caffrey, regional administrator of the securities exchange commission, came the assertion that seven sellers carried on the books of the firm's crude drug department did not even exist, and that the company never had dealings with several reputable London firms, listed on the corporation's books as heavily indebted to it.

Failure of the United States Hair company was a great scandal of 1913.

Philip Musica, Coster—then 36, was highly-respected as the son of a man who had been dealing with the city's top bankers for 30 years. Suddenly, he was accused of negotiating $300,000 to $500,000 in fraudulent bills of lading and worthless drafts.

Investigators who sought 700 cases of human hair supposedly imported by Musica found nothing but "rubbish" hair, and lead to add weight to the packing cases.

Arrested on Ship

Detectives learned Musica and his family had fled, headed for Honduras. They learned likewise that banks both in this country and in foreign countries had been duped by fraudulent invoices of what was estimated generally at more than $1,000,000.

At New Orleans, the detectives found the Musicas on board ship. Returned to New York, they were indicted. Philip insisted he alone was to blame. He pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and was given a suspended sentence.

Philip Musica was born in 1877 in Naples, son of Antonio, the barber, whose people were of peasant stock. In 1883—Philip then was 6—Antonio loaded his family into ship's steerage and came to New York.

On the teeming east side, he opened a barber shop. He prospered moderately, and began a small importing business.

Dealing chiefly in cheeses and other foodstuffs demanded by the fast-growing "Little Italy," he listened finally to the impatient, am-

Julian F. Thompson, then an investment banking firm agent, had met Coster the previous year when Coster was head of a prosperous hair tonic firm, Girard and Company, at Mount Vernon. Thompson said Coster had headed it since 1922.

Thompson said he arranged bank credits for Coster in 1925. A year later Coster came to him and said he (Thompson) induced Connecticut banks to put up $1,000,000 to purchase McKesson and Robbins.

Dates for 1939 Seymour Fair Set

Action Taken at Meeting Of Officials at Green Bay

Dates for five county fairs to be held in the northeastern part of Wisconsin in 1939 were set at a conference of officials this week at Green Bay.

The Seymour fair will be held Aug. 18, 19 and 20. Theodore Nicodem, president, represented the Seymour Fair and Driving Park association at the meeting. Officials of this section of the state meet each year to set dates so that they do not conflict with one another within certain areas.

Dates of other fairs are: Brown county, Aug. 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27; Manitowish, Aug. 10, 17, 18, 19 and 20; Door county, Aug. 25, 26 and 27; and Kewaunee county, Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

bitious voice of his son, Philip, who had grown into a sharp, shrewd lad, and the business suddenly boomed.

Curious Government

Curious government investigators learned the Musicas had escaped heavy duty charges by bribing weighers to mark down the weights on invoices for cheese imports.

Philip and his father were charged with fraud. Philip was sentenced to serve a year in prison and to pay a $5,000 fine. On Oct. 29, 1909, he went to Auburn State prison, which then received federal prisoners. The charge against his father was dismissed.

In the spring of 1910 a pardon from President Taft opened the prison doors, and Philip walked out, free.

Again, he urged his father into business. This time, the importation of hair, since high coiffures of women boosted the price of false hair, often as much as $800 a pound. The United States Hair company was formed.

In 1913, in connection with the collapse of that firm, Philip pleaded guilty to grand larceny, aided the district attorney to clean up the case while he was a prisoner in the Tombs for three years, and finally was discharged with a suspended sentence, March 28, 1916.

Acted as Investigator

He worked as a special investigator for the district attorney, and then Barnet Baft, a chicken handler, was slain. Joseph Cohen, among others, was charged with his murder.

Musica obtained an affidavit from a gangster who said he heard Cohen and a group of other men planning the murder of Baft.

Cohen was convicted. Charges of perjury and false testimony flew. Governor Alfred E. Smith, puzzled by the claims, commuted Cohen's sentence to life imprisonment.

Eden Says Steel Must be Set To Defend Heritage of Freedom

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—No observer of what is going on in the world can deny the grim accuracy of what Anthony Eden said in his New York speech. "We know that we are destined in our land and in our generation to live in a period of emergency of which none can see the end," the former British foreign minister said. "If throughout that testing period, however long or short it may be, we hold fast to our faith, cradle it in stone, and set steel to defend it, we can yet hand on our inheritance of freedom, intact to the generations that are to come."

Within the compass of those two brief sentences is stated the situation and the way in which it must be met. Primarily Eden was speaking of England. The shoe also fits us. Not so tightly. But it fits. Europe is, as Eden said, living in a period of emergency. Europe is in the midst of a bloodless war. Not diplomatic fencing, but war. It is war minus only the human slaughter. Germany and Italy operate practically on a war-time basis. The gun muzzle is at all times leveled.

In diplomatic bargaining, the object is to narrow down differences and reach a final agreement. Each side, of course, tries to obtain as much as it can, but the object is to reach an agreement, to find some common meeting ground which will be acceptable to both sides. Each side is prepared to give and take.

That is not the procedure in Europe today. Chamberlain goes to Munich and surrenders, hoping that his surrender will bring peace. Under the old diplomacy that was a natural expectation. But his sacrifice was in vain. For he hardly had returned to England before Hitler was making remarks about him, and about other British statesmen.

No Consideration Was Shown for Chamberlain

Hitler showed not the slightest consideration for Chamberlain and no appreciation of the efforts which the present British government has made to satisfy German ambitions. Instead Hitler and his journalistic mouthpieces have conducted a campaign of trouble-provoking attack, arrogant almost beyond peace-time precedent, and seemingly designed not to encourage appeasement but to make appeasement impossible. That, together with the incredible anti-Jewish campaign, is driving out all vestiges of friendly feeling toward Germany and has caused even Lord Londonderry, a leader of the pro-Nazi group behind Chamberlain, to turn on Germany.

A few months ago England was preparing to reopen the colonial question, and powerful influences favored concessions to Germany. Hitler's conduct has caused all such friendly sentiment to freeze cold.

Under the old diplomacy, it would have been the height of stupidity thus to frustrate a sympathetic regime in England. As diplomacy which seeks peace, Hitler's course doesn't make sense. It is understandable only when regarded as a maneuver in a bloodless war, in a war to beat down the enemy, to hammer, hammer, hammer and fight it through to a finish. No Middle Ground Exists for Hitler

Hitler's attitude toward Britain since Munich demonstrates how far away he stands from our concept of what relations between nations ought to be. For him there exists no middle ground between war and abject surrender. To prosecute his bloodless war, Hitler must keep his own nation on a war footing, ready at all times to go into action.

Each day makes it more plain that the pace is set by the war-like nations. China had a comfortable, easy-going philosophy, but Japanese bayonets make it difficult for the Chinese to enjoy their philosophy. We have a fine philosophy of human rights which rests on justice and respect for the individual. But to be sure of enjoying it, the western hemisphere must be protected from the encroachment of war-like nations. Only one thing will cause our rights to be respected. Force.

Justice, fair-play, good neighborliness have no place in the foreign policy of some foreign powers today. Therefore, as Eden said, if we want to hold fast to our faith, we had best set steel to defend it. Then we will be less apt to have to defend it if we trust to the self-restraint of nations that know none.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Appeasement Since Munich

Since Munich the two dictators have done the exact opposite of what the supporters of Mr. Chamberlain and M. Daladier might reasonably have expected. If we could understand this, if we could see why Hitler is making things so difficult for Mr. Chamberlain and why Mussolini is making them so difficult for M. Daladier, we should probably have the clew to the European mystery.

The theory of Munich was that Hitler would be appeased by a free hand in eastern Europe and a resounding victory of prestige. It might then have been supposed that he would do everything he could to strengthen the position of Mr. Chamberlain inside Great Britain. By a conciliatory attitude toward the western democracies Hitler might well have confounded the critics of Munich, and he might have created a sufficient appearance of security to slow up rearmament and to dampen down the movement toward national union through a patriotic awakening. It would have been very difficult indeed for men like Mr. Eden and Mr. Churchill to make much headway if Hitler had chosen to refrain from annoying the British while he proceeded with the conquest of eastern Europe.

Both England, France are Being Provoked

But since the very first week after Munich, and since then with ever-increasing intensity, the Nazis have been provoking the British, and the Italian Fascists have been provoking the French. Had they set out to convince the two democracies that the policy of appeasement will not work, they would have done just about what they have actually done. Thus Hitler began by serving notice on the British people that he reserved the right to interfere in their internal politics; he named the British statesmen whom he did not wish to see included in any British government. This was followed by the assertion that in principle Hitler laid claim to return of all the former German colonies, an assertion which plants the seeds of doubt, of agitation and of unrest at strategic points all over Africa. This was accompanied by open incitement in the Nazi press of the Arab rebellion against the British position in the Near East.

This was followed by the limitless cruelty of the Jewish persecutions, accompanied by sporadic mob action, that a persecution of the Catholic Church was developing.

The spectacle has served to show how much mercy any people may expect if it falls defenseless under Nazi domination. This was followed by virulent attacks not only on the critics of Munich, but on Lord Baldwin, who supported the Munich accord. And this was accompanied by an organized demonstration in Italy demanding the dismemberment of France and what amounts to Italian domination of the Mediterranean Sea.

For the possession of Tunis, Corsica and the Balearic Islands would destroy British and French communications with their empires, and the granting of belligerent rights to General Franco would, because General Franco has no effective navy, in fact be the granting of belligerent rights to Mussolini to stop and search all British and French shipping that ventured within range of the Spanish coast.

Internal and External Factors Are Involved

What is one to make of this reply to the policy of appeasement? Is one to suppose that these acts, which provoke and arouse rather than conciliate and lull British and French opinion, are a deliberate policy, intelligently calculated, or that they reflect uncontrollable forces within the German and Italian revolutions? We know from the Russian revolution that internal tension can reach a point where the ruling faction is compelled to do things that destroy its own capacity to carry on its own foreign policy. Thus Stalin has had to destroy the effectiveness of the Russian army in European affairs because he has had to kill off the opposition which threatened his power at home. Russia is an example, therefore, of how a revolution can be driven upon a contradictory course.

The question is whether something of the same nature has been happening in Germany and in Italy, whether in answering the Chamberlain-Daladier policy of appeasement with a program of provocation, the dictators are furthering their imperial ambitions or are obeying their revolutionary necessities. The question is not an easy one to answer, and no conclusion can at this time be proved. But my impression, for what it is worth, is that for the time being the two impulses coincide: that it is at once good policy to provoke the British and French and that it is at the same time an internal necessity.

For though it sounds reasonable enough to say that Munich should have been followed by sedatives administered to Britain and France, the fact is that a period of quiet on the western front would have been contrary to the rules of warfare which these conquerors understand so well. When you have inflicted a defeat on your adversary, the rule is to give him no time to recover but to press on until you have turned his defeat into a rout.

Now the great enterprise of a pan-German empire in eastern Europe cannot be undertaken as long as the British and French are formidable in its rear. Germany had just such an empire as she now desires when Russia surrendered at Brest-Litovsk in 1917. But that empire collapsed when Germany was defeated on the western front. So the Anglo-French power must be Hitler's primary concern, and his problem is how to disintegrate and immobilize that power.

Forces Them to Act Before They're Ready

To let Mr. Chamberlain and M. Daladier alone does not solve the problem. For though their critics at home think them weak, Hitler must realize that they are patriots and that, however slowly, they will nevertheless surely seek to strengthen their countries. As time goes on the national spirit is bound to assert itself in both nations.

Therefore, there is much to be said for compelling the British and French, who are now divided and distracted, to face the issue before they are ready to face it. Today there is still a wide divergence between the views of Mr. Eden and Mr. Chamberlain. But as time goes on the gap is closing. If the opposing parties in England could be provoked into an election campaign before the gap is closed, the election speeches and commitments would widen the gap until it was perhaps an unbridgeable chasm, and so perpetuate that division in British opinion which immobilizes British action in Europe. If on the other hand, the British are allowed to proceed at their own pace, they will tend to unite and in uniting become strong and effective.

Since democracies work slowly, the way to confuse them is to keep hurrying and hustling them till they are too distracted to act coherently.

New Fascists Must Press On For Victories

But if it is expedient to force the issue abroad, it is no less necessary to force the issue at home in order to keep ahead of the rhythm of revolution. In both Italy and Germany there have almost certainly been revolutions within the revolutions. In Italy the older Fascists, who were Italian nationalists in foreign affairs, have been overcome by the fall of Austria and the captivity to Germany; the controlling Fascists today maintain their position in the party and in Italy by serving Germany. If they are to succeed, they must justify themselves by spectacular successes. For the Italian nation suffered too much from the domination of the Hapsburgs to rejoice in the presence of Hitler on their frontier. The new Fascists must press on for victories in order to make the Rome-Berlin axis palatable to the Italian nation.

And within Germany, there has also been a revolution within the revolution. It has displaced the older army leaders, the bureaucracy, and the big business men who are represented by Dr. Schacht. The extremists who are now in power also have to justify themselves. For the conquest of the east is a costly business and the anticipation of victory is a very different thing from the fruits of victory. The German revolution cannot move slowly and deliberately; it must move ever more rapidly, and therefore ever more ruthlessly, because when an extreme party is in power it must win all quickly or lose all inevitably.

And so, there is little reason to expect that the dictators will, or that they can, help Mr. Chamberlain to make his policy of appeasement look even for a little while as if it were successful.

Wide Gap Between Best and Poorest Schools in Nation

Education Head Says Situation Worse Than 100 Years Ago

"There is a wider gap between the best and the poorest schools in America today than there was 100 years ago," Dr. Reuben T. Shaw, president of the National Education association told teachers in an address before the Appleton Education association at Wilson school Thursday.

"It is true that great progress has been made in our larger cities and in our modern wealth states," Shaw said. "However, if we study the problem on a national basis, the most appalling differences in educational opportunity exist among the states, differences represented in a range of average annual expenditures for schools, per pupil from $19 in one state to $124 in another."

The education head said, according to a survey made last year that 800,000 children in the nation between the ages of 7 and 13 years are not going to school. He pointed out this is true because schools are not available for them to attend or are so located that attendance is practically impossible.

Need Improved Locations

Another 3,500,000 youths of high school age are not enrolled in high schools because they are not located where attendance is possible or do not provide the courses in which these youths are interested.

"If this nation is to persist in the democratic way of life, it is incapable that all citizens be provided with schools and the means of public education," Shaw told teachers. "Anti-Americanisms thrive only in a soil of ignorance fertilized with poverty."

"The nation's interest in reducing crime, poverty, unemployment and relief, in improving the general physical and spiritual health and cultural welfare of its people, is quite impossible of realization without public schools," the speaker said.

Crime Cost

Shaw told teachers the annual bill for crime in America is 15 billions and that four of five of those whose finger prints are recorded in the criminal division of the Bureau of Federal Investigation are either illiterate or have had very little education. Almost all crime as observed and studied by the bureau is preventable by the right sort of education, he said.

A luncheon was given for Dr. Shaw Thursday noon at the Conway hotel at which he was introduced to education heads and officials of Appleton. Dr. Shaw is head of the science department of the Northeast High school in Philadelphia, Pa.

681 Treatments Given At Orthopedic School

A total of 681 regular and special treatments were given children at the orthopedic school during November, according to the report of Inez Christensen, physiotherapist. Eight complete orthopedic examinations were made by physicians during the month.

Clover Lawn Students Cited for Attendance

Seven students of the Clover Lawn school, town of Deer Creek, were perfect in attendance last month, according to Miss Katherine Bates, teacher. They are Lucille Young, Kenneth Neilson, Frank Suprise, Alfred Poppe, William Daggett, Ivan Neilson and Luella Pelky.

COMMISSION TO MEET

The Appleton Water commission will hold its semi-monthly meeting this afternoon at the water office on Walnut street.

TYPICAL VIEW OF WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY AT WORK

State capital hotel men, who have an economic interest in the legislature, and state capitol departments who will be forced to move when the 1939 session begins, are making preparations for the arrival of Wisconsin senators and assemblymen soon after the beginning of the year. The above picture shows a typical view of the assembly, the lower house of the legislature, in action. The biennial legislative sessions by law begin on January 11 of odd-numbered years.

Capital Stirs as Preparations are Made For Influx of State Lawmakers in January

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Do you think the price of potatoes is too low, or too high? Do rainstorms make gullies in your vegetable patch? Have you a formula for economic prosperity? Are you dissatisfied with the condition of the dairy market? Call Badger 5100, the state capitol, anytime after the first week in January. The legislature is coming to town.

The Wisconsin state legislature, the 133 farmers, barbers, paperhangers, lawyers, editors, labor organizers, businessmen, and other varieties of Wisconsin citizen who make the laws which rule the state will arrive in Madison soon after the New Year for the six or eight months' session which is held every other year.

Now is the time for all citizens to come to the aid of their assemblymen or senators, one might say. For now is the time that the men who were elected this fall are meditating on the bills which they will introduce in a deluge during the first six or eight weeks of the session, each of them containing an idea which its author believes should be included in the big, thick book of fine print which is the volume of Wisconsin statutes.

Department Moving

State capitol departments are now making way for the lawmakers; committee rooms must be furnished for the legislators who will hear arguments on their own bills and those of their colleagues every week day afternoon from January through July or August. New quarters must be rented for the bureaus and commissions which occupy the legislature's quarters during the off-years.

During the biggest hall of the new year the statehouse will ring with the speeches of the makers of Wisconsin laws, the meticulous talks of the teacher members, the heavy rhetoric of the numerous members of the legal fraternity, the querulous verbal contests between majority and minority politicians, and the thumping gavels of the presiding officers.

Into the legislative hopper will be dumped among others, the biennial, quota of crack-pot schemes of all kinds which their sponsors fondly believe will bring the millennium in a hurry. Special interest groups will button-hole the solons to amend this law and that one. Lobbyists will fill the hotels. Delegations will come from everywhere. And out of it all will come 400 or 500 new enactments, some changing just a sentence or a phrase, some rewriting whole chapters in the statute book, some consisting of but a single line repealing at one blow the fond work of some previous administration.

The legislature is coming to town to take over the capitol.

Variety of Gifts Suitable for High School, College Students

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN

If your ribbon-bedecked gift to that teen age girl cousin or niece contains a frothy evening scarf to keep her hair in place on the way to a holiday dance, or a pair of fluffy angora mitts in white or pastel shade or a brief-bolero jacket of twinkling sequins, your stock is bound to go up considerably with that particular young lady, for that's one way of showing the "small fry" that you know what goes on among the younger generation.

A hand-knit angora sweater, even if she already has several, will be a welcome item, for the sweater and skirt have become practically a uniform for classroom wear both in high school and college and therefore a wide variety is an absolute "must." Pleasant scarfs in any color of design are another gift you can't go wrong on, nor can you make a mistake if you shop at the hosiery counter either for soft woolly ankle socks to wear inside heavy, flat-heeled oxfords or for something lacy and exquisitely sheer for a glamorous evening of "swing and sway."

Parkas and hoods to keep ears warm while skating or tobogganing, house coats soft and warm, or smart lounging pajamas for leisure hours, or something "extra special" in the way of satin underwear, tailored or lacy are other high points in the gift line.

Something for Evening

For the gal who gets around, who loves to dress up and go to parties, a rhinestone evening bag, some exciting new perfume or a tiny angora muff for evenings will be just what her letter to Santa ordered.

Have you thought of the possibility of smart new luggage for the college girl who goes home for weekends or off to neighboring cities for a show or two and some shopping? Striped airplane luggage in various colors to match her traveling outfit will be a welcome gift, whether you choose one of the small, handy overnight cases, quite inexpensive, or a larger, more elaborate case, perhaps with fittings. A year's subscription to one of the smart women's magazines will continue to bring pleasure during all of 1939, and will be particularly welcome to the college girl who never gets a chance to see a magazine except while sitting under a dryer waiting for her curls to set.

So that the young men of high school or college age won't find themselves swamped with neckties and socks this Christmas, a few hints are passed along to vary the shopping lists. If young Mr. Modern has a hobby, as most fellows do, the task of finding a gift which he will cheer about is fairly simple. For instance, if he goes in for amateur photography, a popular hobby these days, his own allowance may not stand for many fancy gadgets and he'll put you at the top of his favorite relatives list if you get him a set of developing tanks, a new tripod or one of the new negative files with transparent envelopes so that he won't have to handle the negatives to see what they are.

Ski Socks are Good

If he is a sking enthusiast, slip him a big pair of fur mittens to keep the frost from his fingers, or a wooly pair of ski socks. If he likes to fish he'll love one of the new pocket knives with cork handles which prevent the knife from sinking if it falls into the water. A set of cuff links and studs for his formal clothes will delight the "social whirler", and there are any number of fancy accessories to be had for the young car owner, such as a combination cigar case and lighter which presents a lighted cigaret at the touch of a button.

In general, most young men would welcome new luggage for weekends out-of-town or longer trips next summer, monogrammed bill folds, a key ring with tiny flashlight attached to help locate elusive keyholes at night, and belt and buckle sets.

Some poultrymen say heavy corn feeding seems to increase the tendency towards feather-picking and cannibalism while heavy oat feeding seems to decrease this tendency.

THE WAY OF EUROPEAN FLESH

Louis XII, King of France, had given his solemn word to protect the Republic of Florence—that nearly lone democratic state in a sea of enemies—from encroachment.

But what of the royal word? How much reliance could be placed upon it?

As the army of the French king came over the Alps to take Milan there rode at its head the young and handsome Caesar Borgia, Duke of Valentinois, and known to history as Valentino, tall and powerfully built, hard as flint and pitiless as a jungle beast whose dream of grandeur that led him through fire and blood was to shape the course of Europe during his short but flushed and flaming life and be felt for centuries after.

The immediate purpose of the invasion was to create in the north and central part of Italy, and by consolidation of little states, a great state in order that Valentino might have something to rule over. One after another the smaller states succumbed to force and violence yielding all told a Romagna nation but Valentino's ambition was limitless and alarm spread to other states, Florence included, which arose in panic. Florence was not to be caught napping.

Following the custom of the fifteenth century, the little republic detached a commissioner and attached him to Valentino. This was Mechiavelli, a sort of consular spy whose duties involved him in entertaining Valentino and fawning upon him, and trying to find out the great secret which had to do with his purposes.

Mincing no words in his first report back to Florence Mechiavelli wrote:

"The French respect only those who are willing to fight or to pay, and, since you have shown yourselves incapable of either they consider you zero."

Thus it appeared that the weak were always wrong. Indeed, error and weakness were twins. Certainly the weak had no right to complain unless they complained against themselves for being weak.

And, so warned, Florence prepared her defenses as she employed every artifice to appease Valentino and avert bloodshed and possible defeat, which in those days mean a thorough seeking.

It was from these associations with the grim Borgia that Mechiavelli wrote his conceptions of government and of the nature of princes who, to be successful, must be ruthless, a treatise that has been accepted in lieu of holy scripture in many chancelleries during the intervening centuries and still holds sway in important capitals.

As Valentino consolidated his gains in Pesaro and Rimini this youth in his early twenties told Mechiavelli, "Two points are important—in the first place care should be taken to wipe out the family of the former sovereign; in the second, laws should not be changed or taxes increased."

With the cunning of an aged master of crime this almost-boy dissected the wild rumors, the terrible libels, that circulated about him. Up to a certain point he would say they had good value for him but beyond that they became an obstruction. Thus he welcomed the suspicion of harsh crime, the stories of opponents suddenly stabbed in the dark, but he fought off the notoriety of scandal and sternly punished those who reflected upon his personal conduct.

As his army continued to ravage the countryside Florence prepared and trembled. And Mechiavelli studied with fascination the man he was sent to observe, watched the level eyes, the long feline jaw, the firm lips, the elegance of movement, the supple grace of his muscular limbs, and concluded that he was the most finished and accomplished ruler the world had ever known and that succeeding generations must have men built to his mold.

But Mechiavelli's admiration was yet to see its zenith. Only when there grew up a confederation of malcontents under Valentino that led to open rebellion did this superb tyrant reveal the true subtlety and icy coldness of his nature. Carrying on negotiations for peace and adjustment which culminated in consent and agreement, the Borgia topped all with a banquet at which heavy hands were laid upon the quondam rebels and everyone of them slaughtered. That was a glossy and elegant purge. It was all done in such silky manner with soft voice never grating and constant smile never flickering that Mechiavelli was struck with the utter control this man had over nerve and mind and muscle and how beautifully all were coordinated in the art of deception beyond compare.

Here then was one who talked little but always acted, a force of nature without scruple or conscience, someone who read minds as he read books and analyzed problems even as a razor smooths the cheek.

But all this piling success caused consternation in Florence. And the republic finally succumbed to necessity.

To fight this force of nature, to preserve itself against this human panther, how could democracy function excepting with one last step in abolishing itself?

So the argument has run through the centuries. So it ran then.

Florence must get rid of inefficiency, of bawling senators, and fat politicians. It must have discipline and efficiency, and how could these be obtained with that eternal debate and the constant parade before the mirrors?

So Florence, enemy of one man rule for centuries, bowed the head and supinely waited for the yoke to be lifted and fastened around its neck. It created a ruler for life, a permanent executive with powers practically equal to those of Valentino and expected him to invigorate and give continuity to its policies.

It selected its first dictator, Piero Soderini, carefully. It wanted a wealthy man, it said, so he would not be tempted, a childless man so he might not set up a dynasty, a law-abiding, public-spirited man of integrity, and it got such a one.

But the days of the republic were numbered. Piero Soderini did not live long. What man does? But the republic, which should have lived forever, when once stilled, never found occasion to thereafter return to robustness.

The same argument and the same fear that destroyed the Republic of Florence 400 years ago operate throughout Europe today.

Europeans love democracy if truth be known, but with a leering menace at the border they have little confidence that it can successfully meet and destroy the constantly arising forces of Valentino.

TIT FOR TAT
A Philadelphia trial judge has blocked the distribution of about $90,000 in an American estate devised to relatives of the deceased who reside in Germany.

The decision seems to have been spontaneous—at least the Judge declared his action was taken "in view of the fact that money belonging to beneficiaries in this country is not permitted to leave Germany." The Judge further remarked that he thought it was about time to find out whether German heirs might be favored by receiving American bequests while American heirs would be prevented under Hitler decrees from receiving German bequests, excepting as they went to Germany to spend the money there.

Whatever the Appellate Court may determine the law to be, this trial Judge has set a worthy example by inviting a close study of the subject. If his decision cannot be sustained under existing law it is likely nevertheless that remedial legislation will follow to put us on a par, not only with Germany but with every country that takes a similar attitude.

In fact, the proposition is not one of retaliation at all. It is merely whether we shall take those judicious steps that should guide every nation in order that its people receive just treatment by comparison with other peoples, and look to it at the same time that there shall be no constant draining of our wealth whether over the Mexican border, the Rhine or elsewhere.

There is nothing high and mighty about such an attitude; neither is there a purpose to hog the sun. There is a forthright attempt to obtain equality of treatment.

PAYING ITALY BUT NOT AMERICA
The Mexican Government has just announced that it has "ordered immediate payment" for the real estate recently taken over from some Italians and divided between Mexican peasants. The total amount involved is estimated at about $500,000. It will be borne in mind that the Americans who had their property wrenched from them have not yet been paid, although some of them were divested as much as ten years ago. They have received, it is true, a promise that about 10 per cent will be paid some months hence, and the balance over a period of ten years.

Judged by the long and thorny past of Mexico's unbroken record of broken promises, the Americans will get nothing more than what is known on the street as the wet finger. They may get the first 10 per cent payment but even that is very doubtful. By paying $500,000 to the Italians, Mexico makes all the more uncertain its ability to meet the demands of Americans.

And why are the Italians preferred, and the Americans treated as Hitler treats the Jews? There seems to be only two possible answers: One is that the Italians greased the palms of Mexican officials, and the other is that Mexico fears from Italy the sort of economic retaliation of which America, too, is capable but slumbers on its rights so long as only Americans and their properties are destroyed.

Meanwhile the Mexican government continues to take over American properties. It prefers them. They make the least trouble and their government is so easily sidetracked.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—The big elevator that carries the subway crowds up from the lower level at Grand Central station was packed. The Negro operator called out "That'll be all," and started closing the door. As he did so a plump and puffing little man dashed up and squeezed in, pushing against a squat, sour-faced woman in order to make room for himself.

The woman, as were the rest of us, was pinned tightly in the pack, but she managed to squirm around so that she confronted the man whose unintentional jostling she resented.

"Who are you shovin'?" she roared. Her voice was hard and masculine.

The chunky little man blushed and looked both guilty and surprised. Some of us who were pinned closely to them inched our heads around to look. Our faces, however, remained expressionless. A sudden tenseness filled the elevator.

The woman, eyes flashing, glared at him. Their faces were no more than a foot apart. She raised her voice.

"You, shovin' me!" she snarled. "You—dirty foreigner! You dare, you foreigner, shove me—an American!"

Her face, swarthy and coarse, contorted into an expression of loathing. The man seemed dazed. He said no word.

The elevator had reached the top. The door opened. Everyone hurried to get out. All of them, like me, wanted to get away as quickly as we could from the—American.

Some observers argue that outbursts like that, outbursts showing a certain hysteria of mind, are less frequent in New York than in other parts of the country, but I can't agree. The argument of such observers is that New Yorkers don't like scenes and therefore are careful to avoid causing them. That anyone resident very long in New York acquires a mask of indifference and affects to be unconcerned in the face of public disturbances, but I have not found New Yorkers to be less troublesome or quick on the trigger than anywhere else.

In a single week of going around town—and not looking for trouble, I assure you—I have seen:

(In a prominent hotel cocktail lounge)—A woman walk over to a table and without a word of warning grab another woman by the hair yank her from her chair and then smack her in the face and knock her down. (Nice people!)

A man running down the street pursued by a determined woman with an umbrella. (She nearly bowled me over, and I wasn't doing anything!)

Two prominent men (both writers) in evening clothes brawling with their fists in a very spiffy night club.

Two cab drivers screaming names at each other in the middle of the streets while their abandoned cabs stymied avenue traffic for blocks.

And, most exciting of all, in a restaurant patronized by prominent actors and musicians late at night, a chunky little fellow walking up to a Broadway detective and saying: "I'm not going to smack you while you're wearing that gun, because you're the kind of heel who would burn me down with it and call it self-defense; but I'll be at my gymnasium tomorrow night at 8, and if you've an ounce of nerve in your body you'll be there—and I'll beat every brain out of your body." (Such talk!)

The youngest coloratura in town is Gloria Jean, a mere 10 years old, who sings such arias as the Bell Song from "Lakme" with the calm assurance of a Lily Pons. Her last name is Schoonover, her family lives in Scranton, Pa., and she has had less than a year's coaching, yet her sponsors already are dreaming of her as a second Deanna Durbin.

Gloria Jean has made no public appearances. Her teachers intend to avoid the mistake frequently made with prodigies of rushing them before audiences before they are ready. They are teaching her languages, so that she may sing in the original tongue whatever aria is chosen for her. Most important, to my way of thinking, is that they are trying above all else to keep Gloria Jean her age; to have her live as far as possible a normal ten year old's life.

Looking Backward
10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 14, 1928
Lawrence college was closed Friday noon and visitors were barred from St. Elizabeth hospital and Outagamie county asylum in an effort to stop the epidemic of colds which had shown no indications of diminishing. Physicians said at least half the homes in Appleton were touched by the malady. The epidemic was nationwide in scope.

"Red Rockets" had been chosen as a name for the Neenah high school basketball team. The new name was suggested by Margaret Blenker in a contest sponsored by The Cub.

A Christmas musical service was to be given at the Congregational church Sunday evening by the church choir under the direction of Carl J. Waterman. The soloists were Mrs. Marian Waterman, soprano; Miss Helen Mueller, contralto; John Phillips, tenor; Raymond Walsh, baritone; LaVahn Maesch, organist; Miss Roberta Lanouette, violinist.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 19, 1913
A new organ for Sacred Heart church was expected that day from the factory in Elgin, Ill., and was to be placed in the choir gallery of the Fourth ward church within a few days. Peter H. Jacobs was the organist and choirmaster at the church.

It was hoped by the members of the Seventh Day Adventists' church that services could be conducted in their new church on Richmond street by the first of the new years.

Butter jumped up a cent that week and was selling at 37 cents but dealers said they should get at least 38 cents to make a fair profit. Oranges were much cheaper than usual, coming down from 40 and 45 cents a dozen to 20 and 25 cents. Apples were sky high, bringing $5 a barrel. The poultry market was higher than the previous year while nuts and candy were about the same.

A Verse for Today
By Anne Campbell
FOR JUNE ANN
The prettiest eyes I ever have seen
Are sometimes blue and sometimes green.
When she is a good little girl and true,
Her eyes are properly heavenly blue.
But when she is naughty (and she has been)
Her pretty eyes are green as green!

Now June Ann, tell me, what are we to do
If one eye is green and the other is blue?
If you are half good, and half bad, you see
That state of affairs might very well be!

So you'd better behave as a four-year-old should,
And make up your mind to be very good;
Then whenever your family looks at you,
Your eyes will be properly heavenly blue!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington — Best available reports are that the President is thoroughly sold on the national necessity of an air fleet approaching 18,000 planes and will ask Congress to finance it, perhaps over a two or three year period.

Estimated cost is pure guesswork because of the varying cost of different types of planes but an outlay of a half billion dollars should not be surprising. It may be considerably more but it is not likely to be a great deal less. Not only must the planes be bought but many of them will have to be replaced by different types before the program is complete.

In turn, each plane requires several additional men in the air force. The present air force averages 10 men to a plane, even at eight men to a plane, the new program would mean an air force of 80,000, half the size of the whole army at present. The 1938 air force is 20,000 men and officers.

Exciting reports have come from Berlin as to the potentiality of the German mass production of air planes. It is generally expected that President Roosevelt will make public some of them to bolster his proposals to Congress.

Output Possibilities Uncertain
There is conflicting information available as to how fast present factory equipment in the United States can put 10,000 planes in the air. The aircraft yearbook published by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce—quite authoritative—reports United States aircraft production in 1937 as follows:

Commercial 2281.
Military 949.
Export 629.

That is not nearly capacity production. At almost any given time one or more of the plane factories will be found short of orders.

Louis Johnson, assistant Secretary of War, has taken steps to speed up American production with a view to avoiding the harrowing experience of England, just now getting into mass production after starting rearmament three years ago.

A thousand manufacturing plants contribute one or more of the 5,000 different types of parts that go into manufacture of a modern fighting plane. A slowdown in any one would create a bottle neck and throttle the speed of the whole.

Conflicting Military Views
There is real conflict within military ranks about such a huge air arm as seems contemplated. The "elderly generals and admirals" are bitterly opposed to an unbalanced swing to a weapon untested in war as a major tool of defense. But it is known here that Assistant Secretary Johnson is nearest to the ear of the president and he is all for the big air fleet, evidently backed by Malin Craig, Army chief of staff.

Some members of congress, including influential Senator Borah, have referred to the air armada proposal as "hysterical." But the Navy whooped up a billion dollar program last spring on the strength of the Japanese menace and it should not be surprising if tales from Munich should persuade congress to go along in the air, balanced budget or no.

Your Birthday
"SAGITTARIUS"
If December 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m., to 1:30 p. m.; from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The dancer periods are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.; from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m., until midnight.

You should let a desire to be helpful actuate your suggestions and actions this day. Obstructionists are apt to find their efforts thwarted and themselves in trouble. A poor compromise might be much better than a fight, even if you have big odds in your favor of winning it. Control your temper, regardless of the amount of provocation you might have, for trouble seems due to come from a lack of self-control. You should make friends easily this day. Wrong methods will fail where right ones will prevail, so let principle keep you in the path of rectitude. Equitable dealings and justice will characterize most commercial transactions. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are in love, should do things this day without altruistic motives.

If a woman and December 17 is your birthday, you are likely to have many excellent opportunities to advance either your social or financial interests. You ought to have many high ideals that will help you gain popularity. You, in all likelihood have a very artistic touch and a discerning eye. Interior decorating, painting, buying merchandise, stage directing, acting and selling are among the activities in which you might excel. You should find much happiness in marriage.

The children born on December 17, although not necessarily of an intellectual type, is likely to be very fond of reading, and have an insatiable desire for knowledge. Children born on this date are generally very skilful with their hands. Gracefulness is frequently another outstanding characteristic.

If a man and December 17 is your natal day, you should have a great deal of depth, a considerable amount of talent and versatility. Through the stage, pulpit, pen, brush, concert platform, or a specialized line of commercial activity,

DIVIDE AND CONQUER

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

IT IS THE CRI
Ever since I launched my one-man campaign to stop intelligent, well-meaning but thoughtless people from calling indispositions, passing discomforts or illnesses "cold" and persuade them to call it "cri" until the nature of the trouble becomes manifest, I have had to endure a good deal of smartcracking by the other sort of people. The burden of their rhetorical questions or arguments is, "What difference does it make what you call it? A cold by any other name is just as bad."

Cri (kree) is any Common Respiratory Infection. It is at least as significant and as honest a name as any other, for the indisposition or ailment, until you or your doctor can find out just what is the matter. Meanwhile innocent persons who may come within your range have fair warning, so if the trouble proves to have been diphtheria, measles, infantile paralysis, meningitis, influenza, septic sore throat or scarlet fever, at least they can't say you deliberately infected them.

On the other hand, if you disarm or attempt to disarm all who come within your range, by pretending your trouble is "just a cold," and a few days later many of your victims are down with a serious illness contracted from you, why, you're a pretty mean specimen, aren't you? Don't answer. I'll tell the world you are.

Proprietors or executives of business places, shops, factories, practicing physicians and their office assistants, dentists and their technicians or office assistants, teachers, students, chefs and waiters, and numerous other citizens apparently believe they are exempt from living the golden rule of hygiene and that they may infect people with whatever they happen to have with impunity. At least such offenders still have the cheek to remain at work and expose people indiscriminately to respiratory infection without fear of being sued for damages or even censured for criminal conduct.

The vital thing which many educated people do not know is that this moisture spray, given off in coughing and sneezing and effectively stopped if the individual holds hand or handkerchief over nose and mouth when he has to cough or sneeze, is likewise given off in ordinary conversation and not even guarded against, as a rule, for the very reason that people do not know the facts about it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Tomatoes
Is there any harm in eating a large amount of tomatoes every day or nearly every day? Is there an acid in tomatoes that causes rheumatism, acidosis or something? (G. L. B.)

Answer — No. Hindhead studied men whose diet consisted exclusively of 11 pounds of tomatoes, about 1 1/2 pounds of Graham bread and 3 1/2 ounces of margarin daily. He found no evidence of any unusual instances of allergy, the liberal use of fresh or canned tomato juice in the diet is healthful. For one thing it supplies vitamin C, in which the diet in the winter months is likely to be poor.

Apocryphal A
I tried ..... tablets to build up my resistance to what I call "head colds." Each tablet contains 3,000 units of vitamin A and 650 units of vitamin D. To my surprise they cured my night blindness. Before I took these tablets driving at night was a nightmare, because I couldn't see against the glare. I now drive comfortably and safely at night. (L. M.)

Answer — The testimonial has the fatal fault of most testimony in respect to the influence of vitamin A on night blindness. How do you know it was not the vitamin D in the tablets that improved your ability to see in poor light? Anyway 3000 units of vitamin A may be had in from one-half ounce to an ounce of dandelion greens, escarole, kale, broccoli, dried apricots, liver, egg yolk, spinach, butter, etc. — so many every day foods are rich in vitamin A that it is difficult to imagine a shortage of this vitamin. Milk, cream, eggs, butter, cheese, greens, fruits and fruit juices, tomato and tomato juice, the yellow vegetables, the green vegetables, liver, kidney, banana, cabbage, carrots, lettuce, asparagus, — in fact it is hard to avoid getting enough vitamin A.

THREE ACQUITTED OF Plot Against Witness
Washington—(U)—Former Brig. Gen. Alexander E. Williams and two army goods dealers have been acquitted of charges of plotting the disappearance of a congressional committee witness in 1934.

A jury of 11 men and one woman returned the verdict late yesterday. Justice James M. Proctor granted a government motion to dismiss a similar charge against former Representative Thomas J. Ryan of New York.

Williams, formerly quartermaster general of the army, and Nathan and Joseph Silverman, Jr., were tried on charges that they induced Frank E. Speicher, New York tire salesman, to remain in hiding while the house military affairs committee was investigating army contracts.

Town of Ettrick Will Not be Incorporated
Galesville—(U)—Residents of the town of Ettrick voted 106 to 87 yesterday against incorporation of the village of Ettrick, one of the largest unincorporated communities in the state. Opponents of incorporation raised the question of economy.

Government Loan To Chinese Seen As Peace Mission

Policy Might Well Be Extended to South America, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Twenty-five million dollars for China—what a variety of implications this action by the government of the United States has at this particular moment in world affairs.

On the surface, in the form of a loan, it is merely a loan for five years to a country which has from time to time enjoyed credit here. But, viewed in its true perspective, any comment of this sort from official quarters, it means that the government of the United States expects that five years from now there will be a government in China.

This bit of moral support—for such it will be regarded in the far east—is a clear indication to the whole world that the United States has by no means dropped out of far eastern affairs or abandoned its belief that the open door of commercial opportunity still exists in the orient.

Entirely apart from the effect in Japan, where money is scarce and American financial wealth is something to be thought about in terms of friendship rather than hostility, American dollars will perform a peace mission in other regions of the world. Thus, if the department of state says the word, government loans can be made to the government of Spain and government loans can be made to the smaller countries of Europe which need American supplies.

Excess Production

It should be borne in mind that American gold isn't being shipped abroad, but American excess production. Thus, manufactured goods, motor trucks, etc., and American farm products will be exported and paid for with the proceeds of the government loans. In actuality, there will be no money shipped, but credits will be established. Payment will be made by the American government to American producers. The American government will accept the foreign government notes with interest.

The record of the Chinese on previous loans has been very good, so the RFC, which has made the latest loan, feels the risk is a good one. Chairman Jesse Jones is not the kind of executive who makes bad loans. His record in the lending field is almost unsurpassed in the history of government lending. He was originally appointed by President Hoover and he has served efficiently throughout the whole of the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Jones has not announced his future plans for foreign government loans, but, under the existing authority he possesses, the RFC can buy stock in the export-import bank and can accept the notes which the latter institution receives from the borrowing governments. These notes will not be sold to the American public but will be held as assets of the RFC or the treasury.

Stimulate Employment

For several weeks, there have been rumors that the administration was beginning to study the possibilities of extending credits to foreign governments as a means of moving American goods and farm products into market. Dumping, of course, is frowned upon, but the lending of money is a thoroughly legitimate transaction and there is no justification for assuming that this or that portion of the loan some day might be discounted. The important thing is that the United States government is not hesitating to use its financial resources to build up a world economy and to stimulate wide-spread employment. For, once this is accomplished, the basic causes of poverty and unemployment which have given rise to dictatorships abroad and radicalism at home will be to a large extent removed.

To lend government money opens up criticism, to be sure, but the record of foreign government loans for non-war purposes is better than is generally believed. Thus, a study made by some specialists for the Brookings institution showed that, over a period from 1920 to 1935, allowing for defaults of principal and interest, private loans for non-war purposes average a net return of just about the same amount as would have been yielded if the principal had been invested in American government bonds during the same period.

The reason for this, of course, is that, between 1920 and 1929, heavy payments were made on principal and also the interest payments were at a very high rate. Some of those old foreign loans were sold at as high as seven and eight per cent interest, and, if a government paid that interest rate for ten years, it is just the same as our own government paying two per cent or thereabouts for twenty years.

Non-Military Loan

The loan to China is, to be sure, described as a non-military loan, certainly the American government would not lend money for war supplies. But motor trucks and food mean a great deal to the civilian population. Once the precedent was established, and the RFC policy does just that, then the policy might well be extended to Central and South America, where Nazi inroads are particularly feared at the moment. If the United States check-mates German trade in the western hemisphere by outselling German production, the Nazi government might be disposed to listen to reason. For, without a market for her exports, the Nazi government will find itself up against a serious internal situation. The American loan policy is a bit of realism in a world that still consists of weak and strong governments, depending on their respective national resources and their wealth. America does not need to waste human lives—the most that might be wasted to prevent a war is a few dollars' loans.

Clare Major Production of 'The King of the Golden River' Wins Approval of 900 Children

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN
The upturned faces of nearly 900 children reflected their intense interest and varied emotions as they witnessed the Clare Major production, "The King of the Golden River," Thursday afternoon at the Lawrence Memorial chapel. About 100 adults were in the audience yesterday for the first children's play of this season.

The hubbub of children voices quieted down suddenly as the house lights went out, and there was silence except for a few squeals of anticipation and several whispered remarks of "Look, look, it's going to start!" and "Watch the curtains. Now they'll fly open."

Shrieks of pleasure as Gobby whirled Freya off her feet in greeting, giggles as he hid under the table to surprise Gluck, and shouts of glee as Gobby, from under the table, exchanged the bread on the plate for pie and cake, were indications that the youngsters were following the characters in the play and experiencing their every feeling.

"He looks like a prince," one little girl murmured to her companion as Gluck appeared on the stage, and "Aren't they mean to him?" another said indignantly as the black brothers shouted and pushed Gluck about.

Enjoy the King
Tense silence fell over the childish audience as the brothers took Gluck's golden goblet from him and threw it into the furnace to melt it into money, but the youngsters' joy knew no bounds as the little golden man, the King of the Golden River, tumbled out of the furnace door and danced and marched about the room, shaking his golden curls and waving his short little arms and legs.

Proof that the children had been well prepared for the play by reading or being told the story before they came was given by the comments of various ones in the audience about what was coming next. When the knock was heard on the door of Gluck's house early in the play, there were whispers of "That must be the little man," and when the blue gelatins were placed over the lights on the side of the stage for the last act, several said, "Oh, this must be the dark mountain."

Yesterday's play, one of the best the Children's Theater has presented in Appleton, proved interesting to the adults as well as children, and the parents and teachers present found themselves forgetting that this was supposed to be a fare for youngsters as they watched Gluck and his cruel brothers move on toward the denouement which they knew would come.

Settings Well Done
The settings were well done, particularly the mountain scene with its suggested rocky jutting and steep and rugged inclines.

The little king won the hearts of the children completely from the moment he whirled into the room out of the storm in tall black hat and full black cape to sit by Gluck's fire and dry himself. They loved Gluck, too, and pitied him for his cruel treatment at the hands of his brothers, and they laughed at big, kindly Gobby who had such a time getting himself all under the table before Gluck returned. Freya, with her happy caperings and her kind and friendly mother made a hit with the audience, too, but the children thoroughly despised the ugly black brothers and their selfishness, cruelty and dishonesty.

Between acts, the audience was kept amused by singing Christmas carols and a "Happy Birthday" for Gluck who observed his birthday anniversary yesterday.

General piano solos by Rosemary Nickasch, and a vocal solo, "Bells of St. Mary," by Teddy Slater, accompanied by Rosemary Nickasch.

Hunting for Christmas bags and dancing took up the rest of the time.

In charge of the party were Dorothy Runge, Lois Schreiter and Dolores Luebke, who made up the entertainment committee; Lois Rankin, Marilyn Dreier and Ruth Brandt, the decorations committee; and Joyce Meidam, Jane Oesterreich and Stella Fraquhar, refreshments committee.

Students Told Christmas in Rome Was Harvest Festival

"THE Romans were not always as austere and solemn as the writers of Cicero and Virgil may make them appear," Dr. Arthur H. Weston told members of the senior high school Latin club at his home last night.

He pointed out that the Saturnalia, a festival held in December at about the time of the harvest in honor of the god Saturn, was a time of feasting and merry making. Gambling, usually forbidden by law, was allowed during the Saturnalia, slaves were exempt from their duties, and presents were exchanged.

For three centuries after the birth of Christ, Christmas was not celebrated for the early Christians did not celebrate birthdays because they did not think it was appropriate, Dr. Weston said.

"The early Christians did not know the exact day of the birth of Christ, but since Dec. 25 was celebrated by the pagans as the birthday of the unconquered sun, the most important of the gods, the Christians took the pagan festival and made it their own holiday," Dr. Weston said.

After the talk, three versions of the "Story of Arria," a legend about the early days of Rome, were presented by Roman Schmid, William DeLong, and John Leonard. Caroline Weston was the hostess.

Each scene was followed by a discussion of the types of acting demonstrated. Club members signed up for pins.

595 Badgers Seek Farm Tenant Loans

18 Approved for Wisconsin Since Program Went Into Effect

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—A total of 595 applications from Wisconsin for farm tenant purchase loans have been received by the farm security administration since the program got under way about a year ago, for the FSA reports.

For the country as a whole, 144,007 applications have been received since the program was started, 105,868 having come in since the beginning of this fiscal year, July 1, for the 5,000 loans available under this year's appropriation of $25,000,000. Last year 38,139 applications were received for the 1,885 loans from the $10,000,000 appropriation for that period. Wisconsin's applications for loans last year totaled 391 as against 204 for this year. There have been 18 loans approved for Wisconsin since the program went into effect.

The loan program, provided by the Bankhead-Jones act, is one of the government's major steps in combating the growing tenant problem. This act provides for loans to be made in designated counties for purchase of family-size farms. These loans are for a 40-year period, and draw 3 per cent interest. Borrowers are given the same technical guidance and help that is given to rehabilitation loan clients, the FSA says.

892 Children Enrolled In Orthopedic Schools

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Eleven orthopedic schools for crippled children cared for a total of 892 handicapped children during the last fiscal year, according to a budget report of the state crippled children's division.

Included in the total were 60 children in the Green Bay school and 76 in the Appleton unit.

In its budget requests the division proposes to establish three additional schools in Wisconsin cities, including one at Wausau which would serve adjacent northern counties, among them Shawano.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

me," Mary Shaw decided. "I'll be scared to death when Phil goes to duty."

In the midst of the amiable argument Adam strode off to the library.

I wasn't sure whether he wanted me or not, but I remembered concealing my notes under the stair rug and I followed to find them for him.

I gave them to him and he thanked me, then patted my hand in a ridiculously fatherly fashion.

"I wouldn't worry about Charlie if I were you," he said in a tone that matched the gesture. "I'm almost certain he has an alibi this time."

"I'm not worried about him," I said flatly. "If he did it he'll get less than he deserves. I hid his gun, but that was early in the evening. And there are other things I didn't tell you, but I've had time to think things over and I'm not shielding any murderers."

He looked mildly surprised at my outburst, but he listened intently while I told him of my trip back to Colonel Wright's quarters, of the absence of Elizabeth's car and of the silence concerning that absence. I told him of the call from Omaha that had not come through. I told him everything I could think of that I had been holding back—even about the car keys and about her errand on Noncoms' Row at five-thirty that afternoon.

"I don't think she did it," I finished defiantly. "Looking at her, you know she wouldn't do an underhanded thing. But the fact remains that she could have done it, and you have as much right to that knowledge as I have."

I thought he looked rather pleased than otherwise.

"Thank you for trusting me," he said with a nice smile. He inspected me benevolently for a minute. "How do you feel? Tired?"

I nodded. "Much too tired to sleep. I'd like to stay on and help you, if it can be arranged."

He tiptoed to the door, came back laughing quietly.

"They're still here—afraid to go home in the dark."

"Dead-End"

He sobered quickly. "Not that I blame them. . . I'll be very glad of your help. I'm waiting, just now, for the telephone. After that we'll go pay a call on Charlie."

"I must have looked my surprise, but he did not explain. Instead he launched into a recital of his call from Chicago.

"Dead-end street again, I'm afraid. I got hold of one of the partners, all right—and the right one, by good luck. But there was very little he could tell me. He had never seen his client—the one behind Ethel Curtis. All their business was transacted by letter—the letters were mailed in Omaha, the checks were drawn on an Omaha bank, and all of the lawyer's correspondence was directed to Leslie Curtis, in care of the bank. Tell me, is Leslie a man's name or a woman's?"

"Either one, I think."

He nodded. "I asked him which it was, but he didn't know. He seemed to remember that the signature looked like a man's, then changed his mind and said it could have been a woman's. And, oddly enough, he couldn't recall a single reference in any letter as to the relationship between his client and the patient—father, mother, sister, brother, husband—except, of course, that she was always referred to as Miss Curtis."

I stared at him. "That couldn't be all accidental," I suggested, not too brilliantly.

"Someone has gone to a lot of trouble to conceal an unfortunate relative," he agreed gravely.

I tried to put myself in the place of that someone and failed completely. If it were Eileen, struggling against such a horrible infirmity . . .

"Is it hereditary, Adam?"

"I asked Doc that. He says they don't know. It's one of the few diseases — if it is a disease — about which the medical profession is still pretty much in the dark. Some so-called epileptic patients have been found to be suffering from varying forms of pressure on the brain. When the pressure was removed they lost the symptoms. There seems to be a general idea that epilepsy is inherited and that a history in basing a defense plea of insanity. But just what the relationship is, if any, medical authorities are reluctant to say."

I shivered. "Then you think the killer might be insane?"

Adam spaced his words carefully. "I think the killer is someone a little too eager to keep the skeleton in the family closet."

The telephone was ringing again. Adam dashed for it, overturning a chair in his haste.

"Hello—hello! . . . Yes. Yes, go ahead."

His eyes, flaming eager, met mine over the silent instrument. "I put in a call to the president of that Omaha bank. It's just a — Hello — hello! What? What? Oh! Yes sir, Major Drew speaking."

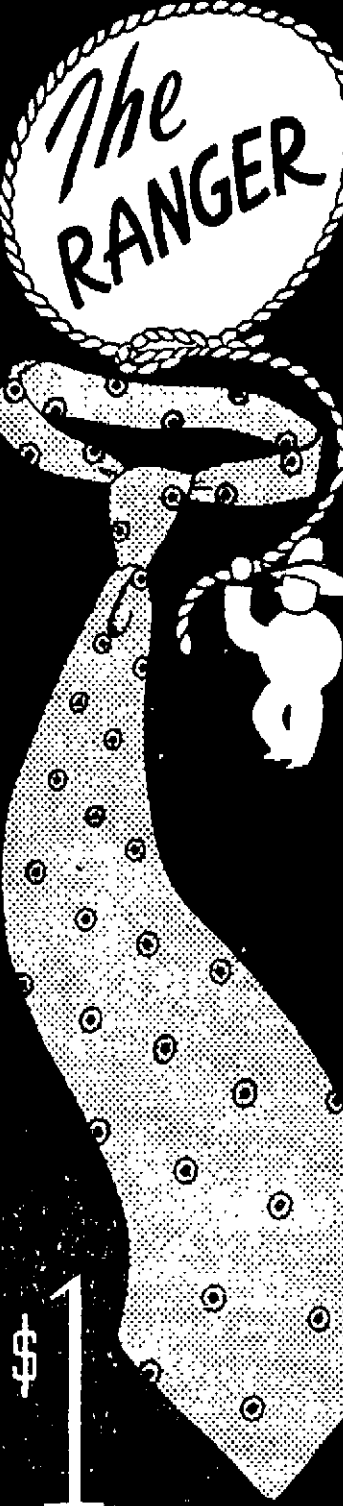

The flaming eagerness faded like a tropical sunset. He straightened, seemed to back away from the crackling instrument. His face was turning slowly crimson.

Find Truck Driver Was Not at Fault In Traffic Death

Coroner's Jury Decides George Garrity Was Not Negligent

George Garrity, route 7, Green Bay, was not at fault in the death of Andrew Roth, a transient killed when struck by Garrity's truck on Highway 41 at Kaukauna last Saturday night, a coroner's jury decided in an inquest at the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

The verdict read: "Andrew Roth was struck and killed by a car driven by George Garrity. We find no negligence on part of George Garrity."

Garrity testified that he was driving toward Green Bay on Highway 41 at the west city limits of Kaukauna when the transient began walking across the road and stopped and turned toward the truck just before it struck him. Lyman Brennan, also an occupant of the truck, gave similar testimony. Chief of Police James MacFadden, Kaukauna, testified as to the conditions he found when he was called to the scene.

Members of the jury were Mark Baumgartner, J. Drexler, William Steenis, George Hein, John Gillespie and Charles Huesemann, Jr.

A Calumet county coroner's jury has found that Mrs. James Coonen, 61, Highlandtown, was killed in an "unavoidable accident" near Dun gas on Nov. 13. Mrs. Coonen was killed when cars driven by her son, Jerome, and John Williams, Highlandtown, collided at a town road crossing. Mrs. Coonen's husband, who was critically hurt in the accident, is still confined to a Green Bay hospital.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES AID FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

These are some of the public health nurses in Appleton and Outagamie county who help to guard the health of both adults and children. Part of their work is the fight against tuberculosis financed mainly through the sale of Christmas seals. Shown in the picture is a drawing of the Christmas seal which is being sold this year. Checks to help fight the disease can be mailed to Al Stoegebauer at the First National bank. The seals will be sold until Christmas by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and the Outagamie Health association. Seated in the picture are: Miss Geneva Blumelchen, Lawrence college nurse; Miss Mary Orbinson and Miss Lina Johnson, public school nurses. Standing left to right are: Mrs. Alice Sablin, Riverview sanatorium field nurse; Mrs. Josephine Versteegen, city nurse; Miss Ellen Standing, medical social worker for the W.A.T.A.; and Mrs. Dora Lemmers, a visiting nurse. Absent when the picture was taken was Miss Marie Klein, county nurse. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Leaders Debate Unemployment Resulting From New Steel Mill

Pittsburgh—(AP)—Labor and industrial leaders debated today the question of technological unemployment in the wake of a gala dedication of this steel capital's biggest and most modern steel mill.

With slightly less than 4,000 men, the magnificent, electrically-operated mass of machinery beneath the 51-acre covered plant in near-by Clairton can turn out 500,000 tons of strip steel (for use in auto bodies, etc.) and 100,000 tons of tinplate in a year.

That was what spokesmen for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation explained yesterday to 1,500 customers, bankers, well-wishers and newspapermen to whom it played host in launching its $60,000,000 Irvin works.

They declined to discuss just what manpower this smokeless giant displaced, even when told a prominent CIO leader had charged the mill would throw more than 10,000 men out of work, eventually if not now.

"The actual figures would be unfair, because they would not show a true picture of what is happening," said an official.

Editor J. H. Van Deventer of Iron Age, a veteran steel observer, agreed as he moved with the others through the spotless works.

He said:

"If we scrapped all steel machinery back to a certain stage and used the hand-type, we might give a multitude of men work on our present tonnage—but the cost would run to $150 or more a ton and few would buy steel."

The labor leader, who asked his name not be used pending a more exact report, said the new Irvin works was an outstanding example of what industry was doing to defeat labor's effort to distribute income.

He named three "big steel" plants already closed and "definitely killed" by the high-production mill: The National works at Monessen, Pa., 1,500 workers; Greer works, New Castle, Pa., 1,100; American Works, Ellwood, Ind., 2,000.

The police and license committee of the common council will meet Monday morning to consider the application of the Conway Management company for a tavern license at 204 N. Appleton street, formerly the Northern hotel. Aldermen at a special council meeting Thursday deferred action on the request because of a movement to limit the number of taverns in Appleton and because the company already holds a tavern license at the Conway hotel.

fault of his own—and the situation has been growing more desperate every day.

The mother, whose health is none too good is distracted and every night the older children pray that "Daddy can find a job so mother won't cry any more." The other day, while a relief investigator was in the home, the oldest boy put his arms around his mother and tried to comfort her.

"When sister and I get a little bigger we'll get a job and then mama won't have to cry any more," he told the investigator.

There isn't much hope for Christmas for this brave little boy unless the Good Fellows respond to this appeal. And there are many other brave little boys and girls just as deserving as this one.

Counties to Ask For Increase in Aid for Highways

Seek Legislative Action to Raise Present $3,000,000 Ceiling

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—In the face of hints from leading members of the new Republican administration that the amount of money available for highway purposes may be reduced during the next two years, the Wisconsin County Boards association today reiterated a demand that the state aid of $3,000,000 annually for maintenance of county trunk systems be substantially increased by the new legislature.

The association pointed out that maintenance costs of the state highway system have increased, and that increased amounts of state money has been made available for that purpose.

"It is a justifiable increase," the association said, pointing out, however, that the counties are receiving the same demands for dustless and ice-free county roads.

The result, the association, said is that the county road maintenance burden has fallen on the local property taxpayer.

Less On Real Estate

"Inasmuch as highway income has increased some $2,000,000 a year more than was contemplated when allotments were made under the 1931 highway law, it would seem only just to bring relief to the real estate taxpayer by increasing the allotment for county trunk maintenance aid," the statement said.

"It has also been suggested that the real estate taxpayer be further protected by placing a definite limitation on the amount that can be levied by counties on real estate for highway purposes. Such a program would guarantee a state-wide reduction in real estate taxes."

The association pointed out that while state trunk highway mileage has shrunk 29 miles since 1931, county trunks have picked up 425 miles, that state trunk maintenance cost has increased $1,800,000, while the $3,000,000 paid to counties has remained "frozen" that revenue from auto license fees and the gas tax has jumped $5,200,000 during the period.

Christmas Cheer Benefit Movie at Theater Saturday

Salvation Army Sponsor; Cans of Food are 'Tickets'

One or more cans of food to be placed in Christmas baskets for Appleton's needy families will be the admission price for boys and girls attending the movie at the Appleton theater at 9:30 tomorrow morning sponsored by the Salvation Army chapter.

The movie, in which three separate films will be shown, is part of the Salvation Army's annual Christmas Cheer program designed to provide abundant Christmas baskets for the city's less fortunate families.

Captain T. A. Raber said today that a capacity crowd of about 1,200 is expected to see "The Hawaiian Buckaroo," an exciting western story, and the two other features, "The Wedding Yells" and "Jungle Jitters." Members of the moving picture machine operators union, local No. 394, are donating their services.

The Salvation Army, through its two Christmas kettles, one at the corner of College avenue and Appleton street and the other at College avenue and Oneida street, through voluntary donations by mail, and through tomorrow's movie is hoping to obtain sufficient food to fill 100 baskets this year. Last year about 60 were distributed. There is no soliciting or house-to-house campaigning during the Christmas Cheer program.

Captain Raber today warned residents of Appleton and vicinity against "boxus solicitors" and said that there have been evidences of fraudulent attempts to collect Christmas contributions under the guise of the Salvation Army. He pointed out that no campaigning is done during Christmas time and that contributions are purely voluntary. Cases of fake solicitors were reported last week in Appleton and in a nearby community, the captain said.

Last year's benefit movie brought out 1,100 of the city's children who enjoyed an entertaining program and at the same time brought happiness to needy homes.

It Is Said--

That the saying, "man is never satisfied" is doubly true of Appleton residents who complain because the city snow plows push snow from the street into their driveways. In defense, officials maintain that if the streets were not cleared of snow, the same people would be complaining because they couldn't drive their cars on city streets.

That stories about dogs that show a spark of intelligence never end, it seems. This morning, a small brown terrier was seen peering around the corner of a garage and taking care to keep himself well concealed. The reason he was hiding was apparent when another dog, a huge police dog, was seen coming down the street.

That Chief of Police George T. Prim is giving transients no chance to play upon the Christmas spirit of Appleton shoppers through their begging. Many beggars know that

Dealers Have Difficulty in Getting Yule Trees This Year

That time to decorate the living room with a spruce or balsam tree gaily covered with jinsel, Christmas bells and candy is here again.

Christmas tree dealers say that the good trees are scarce this year and warn buyers to get them early or face disappointment. The difficulty in getting trees out of the woods this year will be reflected in prices although many trees still will go for 25 cents.

Dealers who cut their own trees in all sections of northern Wisconsin said the ground was too soft this year for trucks and sledges and in many cases trees had to be carried more than a mile to waiting trucks.

Large families again are favoring the large trees, round and bushy, that reach to the ceiling of the living room and sell for about $1. However, many are buying the table styles or those that may be placed on a raised dais. Some dealers have trees available for churches and other purposes that sell for as high as $25.

Trees can only be taken from land that is privately owned and without mortgages which makes it difficult for dealers to find the right type for popular consumption. Much of the northern farm land is government owned.

HOUSEWIVES ATTENTION

There is poultry appearing on the market with just the feathers off. This poultry is usually offered at a seemingly low price and usually is being weighed with the intestines and waste, then as a rule the intestines are removed and you have paid for several pounds of waste which, of course, makes your poultry at a higher cost than the poultry which is being offered at dressed and drawn prices.

To assure you that you are getting a perfect drawn bird you must examine the insides thoroughly as to the odors, then you will know whether your poultry and dressing will make your Christmas Dinner a success.

Picture Starring Rex Ingram Shown At Senior School

Film on Tuberculosis Prevention Financed By Yule Seals

Students of Appleton High school Thursday witnessed the film "Let My People Live" sponsored by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. The chief character in the short drama, which had an all-Negro cast, was played by Rex Ingram of "Green Pastures" fame. W. H. Buschman, publicity director for the W. A. T. A., explained before the showing that the film originally was intended for Negro health education, since that race seems particularly susceptible to the disease.

In a short preliminary talk, Mr. Buschman pointed out that only 20 per cent of the American population enjoys optimum health, while 60 millions are actually ill and 30 millions are unfit for work.

"The marvels of modern medicine may be a possible explanation for these statistics," he said. "We have come to rely so much on easy cures that we neglect the simple health rules of rest, cleanliness, fresh air and good food."

In an informal question period following the film Mr. Buschman outlined for his audience the history of tuberculosis, showing that its symptoms were diagnosed by the world's earliest physician, Hippocrates. "And today, thousands of years later, twice as many people die of tuberculosis as are killed in automobile accidents," he declared. "Their deaths receive no publicity because they are not spectacular."

He left with the high school 20 isotype charts designed to educate students to the facts about tuberculosis.

The film was shown today at Roosevelt Junior High school, Hortonville and Kaukauna High schools. The film was produced and distributed through the sale of Christmas seal funds and are a part of the traveling health exhibit which tours the state nine months of the year.

County Traffic Cops Will Seek Pensions

Green Bay—(AP)—County traffic officers of Wisconsin, who convened here yesterday, took initial steps for establishment of civil service and pensions in their field.

The 75 representatives present voted $2 contributions from each officer to finance a civil service bill in its legislative progress.

Dr. W. C. Sullivan of Kaukauna, honorary member of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police Association, asserted:

"It's liquor sales that mainly necessitate a highway patrol, so why not have liquor taxes furnish the county officers' pensions?"

The officers also seconded the Wisconsin Sheriffs' association in approving a new speed law which would have a day limit of 60 miles per hour, night 50, and 30 in any city.

Six-Man Jury Hearing Drunken Driving Trial

The defendant, arrested Nov. 22 by Appleton police on W. Lawrence street, pleaded not guilty of the charge.

'All News to Me,' Honkamp Says of Insurance Rumor

Appleton Republican Leader Says He Knows Nothing of Appointment

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—"It's all news to me," said Elmer R. Honkamp of Appleton, Eighth district Republican chairman, when he was asked by reporters to comment on reports that Governor-Elect Julius P. Heil may choose him to succeed Harry Mortensen as state insurance commissioner next spring.

Honkamp said he knew nothing of Heil's plans for appointments. Reports that the Eighth district G. O. P. chief is in line for the important insurance assignment have been heard in Republican circles for some weeks.

Honkamp said that he is at work on a plan to organize an information bureau for the guidance of Congressmen - Elect Joshua L. Johns of Algoma during the next two years.

Through a central district party agency, he said, Johns will be apprised of district sentiment on national legislative matters and on political affairs at home during sessions of congress.

Honkamp attended the new governor's budget hearings yesterday. Commenting on Heil's proposed "luxury tax," Honkamp said that he would oppose, and that most other Republican organization men and legislators would oppose, any additional taxes on the persons of low income and the wage-earners.

Novelists Really Don't Have To Take Off Shirts to Write

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Stackpole Sons, the book publishers, have released a little blurb about John Fante, a young author on their list, in connection with his novel, "Wait Until Spring," which says that he starts work fully dressed and ends entirely naked. I have not had a chance to read the book being 'way back on my fiction due to preoccupation with many angry books about the scoundrels who gyped the American people back before the turn of the century, books about Hitler, Mussolini and Japan and books of disillusionment about the great Soviet experiment in human betterment by backsliding communists, who spent six months in Moscow and came out scratching.

In the matter of fiction I am no further along than "Black Oxen," so, unless "Wait Until Spring" is indeed one of those living, human documents, it will be cold on the drug shelves long before I can get around to it.

But, whatever the merits of Mr. Fante's writing, I venture to suggest that he might do just as well or better if he were to keep his shirt on and learn to relax, because no man can undress completely at his work without conscious affectation, which seems to impair his treatment of his story. Even in the presence of himself alone a man is pretty sure to feel that he is being just too, too temperamental, and there is the distracting discomfort to be considered, too. A mosquito or two or a lone, persistent fly nagging away in summer will disturb the concentration of the most intent artist, and in winter, even in Los Angeles, where Mr. Fante lives, the night air will raise goose pimples as big as beans and the breeze will set him to sneezing. Moreover, while a cane chair would cause the maximum of discomfort, any chair would be slightly uncomfortable, whereas the effect he sought is detachment from physical considerations and casualness and comfort.

Mr. Fante is a novelist and I am not, but I have seen novelists of both sexes at work and producing good copy, too, without resort to Minsky effects.

One time in Chicago, for example, the Daily News bought a baseball novel by Christy Mathewson called "Won in the Ninth," and Mr. Bickett, city editor of the American, seeing the announcement of this great work, determined not to be scooped entirely. Frank Chance was then the local baseball hero of Chicago, and it happened that Mr. Bickett had on his city staff a first-class reporter and rewrite man named Carl Pankaek, who was a cousin or brother-in-law of Mr. Chance. So, Mr. Pankaek came in off his murder, or whatever it was, lit a cigaret and typed off the title line of a rival novel by Frank Le Roy Chance, the peerless leader of the Chicago Cubs, "A Bride and a Pennant."

Just Sat Down And Wrote First Installment
He did not take off his shirt, shoes or trousers, but just sat down in one of those old-time newspaper chairs with the green glass phone pole insulators for feet and wrote his first installment. Every day for a couple of weeks Mr. Pankaek would knock off a chapter of "A Bride and a Pennant," and it was my opinion, as a member of the reading public, that his novel, though shorter, was better than Mr. Mathewson's. At any rate, it took some of the fuzz off the Daily News' exclusive Mathewson novel, and I am not sure that he didn't do it just as extra, in addition to the regular murders and such.

Mr. John Wheeler, who was Mr. Mathewson's friend, occasional spook and literary adviser, does not remember, after all this time, who wrote "Won in the Ninth." Newspaper people are more casual about novels than novelists.

I was impressed another time by the conduct of Mr. Jimmy Whittaker, of the New York Mirror, in the presence of a great literary crisis. Mr. Whittaker and Mr. Jo Swerling were writing a novel called "Shebo" day by day for the Mirror, turn and turn about, until, abruptly and inconsiderately, Mr. Whittaker was sent to Hartford for the trial of Gerald Chapman, the desperado. Thus for several days Mr. Swerling, being in the office in New York, was compelled to write not only his own installments but, on the odd days, Jimmy's too.

There Was Only One Flash Of Temperament
Then one evening after court we were all sitting in Miss Imogene Stanley's room when a wire came to Mr. Whittaker saying that it was Jimmy's turn and that Mr. Swerling was stuck. He had killed off most of the characters and death was running through the cast of

"Shebo" like a plague, but he couldn't tie the knot on the end. So Mr. Whittaker sat down on the upended suitcase and, while we waited, beat off the final chapter, put it on the wire and caught the first edition.

The only spark of temperament flashed later when Mr. Whittaker and Mr. Swerling sold the movie rights to "Shebo" for $35,000 and each received a check for $17,500. The next day Mr. Phil Payne, the editor, telephoned Mr. Whittaker several times demanding that he come to work. Finally Mr. Payne lost his temper and threatened Mr. Whittaker's economic security, to which Mr. Whittaker grandly replied, "Oh, put it in writing. I am composing a symphony."

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Sheboygan North at Appleton.
Fond du Lac at Central.
Oshkosh at Green Bay East
Green Bay West at Manitowoc.

APPLETON High school basketball team will attempt to continue its winning streak on the high school floor tonight when it clashes with Sheboygan North five. North is the new school at Sheboygan and is competing in conference play for the first time. Last fall the Terrors met North here in football but it was not a conference game.

Both the invaders and Terrors were defeated in their first league starts last Friday. Appleton dropped a close decision to Green Bay West, 23 to 21, while Sheboygan was bowing to Manitowoc.

Lack of height and some ragged team work were mentioned as causing North's defeat. The Ships controlled rebounds and followup shots and North seldom had a chance to try twice for a basket. North scored four field goals, no player making more than one. It counted nine points at the free throw mark.

Indications are that Werner and Silbernagel will show in the forward berths for North, that Swanson will be at center, and that Spiller and Albertine will be at the guards. C. Wolf and E. Wolf were used as reserves last week.

Shields Disappointed
Sorely disappointed at dropping last week's game to Green Bay West, Coach Joseph Shields has been doing some experimenting with his squad. He has recognized the fact it lacks height and that pivot plays in front of the basket must be altered or even eliminated.

Last week's every attempt to work a pivot play off Bill Besch, center, went awry because Muster, giant West guard, intercepted the ball or made it impossible to shoot.

Part of this week was used to teach Besch deception in his shooting attempts and to changing over the offense in several details. Besch is too good a shot to be kept cooped up in a game and Shields' problem is to get him loose.

There'll be no changes in the starting lineup for the Terrors. Buesing and Fraser will be forwards on set plays and guards on set defense. Wes Morris and Bob Bailey will be the guards on set offense and play the front line on set defense.

Other Games

Green Bay West battles Manitowoc on the latter's floor in probably the feature game of the week. Both showed power last week but Manitowoc is composed of veterans and West of new boys whose showing against Appleton may not be duplicated. West will find the Ships with more height than Appleton.

Oshkosh High school, which knocked off Manitowoc Tuesday night for its second win this season, will invade Green Bay East and should score victory No. 3 against a small Red Devil quintet. Oshkosh has all kinds of height which gives it a distinct advantage.

In the other game, Fond du Lac, winner over Green Bay East last week, and highly pleased because the win was the first in 27 starts, takes on Sheboygan Central at Sheboygan. Fond du Lac is favored although it may find Central's shallow gym a handicap.

Salt Lake City Pro

Leads at Miami Meet

Miami Fla.—(AP)—John Geertsen, 29-year old Salt Lake City, Utah, golf professional who co-starred in the opening round of the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament with a 66 today took his share of the honors lightly.

Asked if the 66 was his lowest tournament score, Geertsen grinned and said:

"Well, it is up to now." Geertsen, a pro for the past eight years but never winner of a big tournament, yesterday whipped par by four strokes to match the score already posted by Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.

Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee, Pa., shot a pair of 68's to stay close on the pace, with Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., in third place with a 69.

Six others, including the ever-dangerous Johnny Revolta of Coral Gables, Fla., were tied at 70, while among six 71's were Ralph Guldahl, national open champion, and Paul Runyan, P. G. A. title-holder.

GIANTS FARM THREE
New York—(AP)—The New York Giants today optioned three players to their International league farm in Jersey City. They were Babe Young, heavy hitting first baseman up from Richmond; Glenn Stewart, third sacker from Fort Smith; and Pitcher Tom Ferrick.

Lou Nova and Farr Clash Tonight for Right to Meet Joe

Englishman Favored in
Go With Promising
Coast Youngster

BY DREW MIDDLETON
NEW YORK—(AP)—The most significant heavyweight fight of the apathetic indoor season will go on in Madison Square Garden tonight between Lou Nova, a promising youngster from Alabama, Calif., and Tommy Farr, a doddering ancient of 24 from Tonypandy, Wales. The prize is the doubtful pleasure of fighting Joe Louis for the heavyweight title some time next year.

The only obstacle between tonight's victory and the stiff left jab of the champion is Max Baer. The unpredictable one beat Farr last winter and if Tommy wins and gets another shot at Louis, there will be plenty of hollering from Baer.

It is a sad commentary on United States boxing that two years of beating the bushes for a white hope has produced only Nova. He is pretty fair but the fortune that awaits the man who eventually beats Louis should have attracted an army of good young heavyweights.

Nova is a handsome young fellow whose most convincing eastern win was against Gunnar Barlund, a victory dimmed by Barlund's defeat at the hands of the inept Roscoe Toles.

Nova's chief stock in trade is a good short right. He also has a fair left but that shouldn't bother Farr, as Tommy took the Louis jab. Louis is fairly fast, smart and strictly a boxer.

The bookmakers do not think this is enough. They have made Farr the favorite and five will get you seven if Nova wins. This is Nova's 26th fight. He makes it against a man who has 74 recorded bouts, uncounted battles in the boxing stalls of England and Wales, plus the painful but enlightening experience of losing to a world champion and two ex-titleholders in this country.

Farr was equipped with great physical courage at the start. Along the way he has picked up all the tricks of the prize trade. He can hit fairly well with either hand. He can take it all night. And he has the stoutest pair of legs in the ring.

Tommy has looked good in training. He is down to 204½ lbs. Nova's 198 or thereabouts—and is dead set on winning his fourth American fight after three defeats.

Mike Jacobs, the promoter, isn't making any predictions about the gate. The best guess is some 12,000 will be in the Garden.

New London at W. DePere.

Neenah—A squad of 21 basketball players will accompany Coach Ole Jorgensen and Assistant Coach Ivan Williams to Shawano tonight as the Rockets seek their fourth straight Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory as well as toppling the conference's defending champion.

Because of their three straight wins so far this season, the Rockets' stock has shot to a high peak, and the veteran Neenah squad is the slight favorite.

Coach Jorgensen indicated he will start his regular line-up tonight, assigning Robert Hackstock and Leo Peterson as forwards, Captain Dan Schmidt at center, and Warren Kettering and Harlan Hesselman at guards. Others who may see action will be Buxton Kettering, Blank, Muench, Erdmann and Krueger.

Coach Williams' second team also will be after its fourth conference victory, and the starting cast probably will be composed of Hauke, center; Calloway and Winkelman, forwards; and Miller and Douglas, guards. Others who will play are Bunker, Smith, Christofferson, Dieckhoff, Haas, and Hackstock.

William Reed, Shawano, the conference's leading scorer, will be the Rocket's Biggest problem tonight when they face the Indians. The chances are Coach Jorgensen will assign Schmidt to cover Reed, and Schmidt is the most likely candidate to successfully do the job. Gottschalk, Shawano's high pointer, also will have to be watched closely.

RED SOX SELL HURLER
New York—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox yesterday sold pitcher Bill (Hard Luck) Harris, a righthander who once performed for the Pittsburgh Pirates, to Jersey City of the International league in a straight cash transaction.

Kimberly A. A. Seeks Its Third Victory This Evening

KIMBERLY—The Kimberly AA champs will seek their third successive win Friday evening at the clubhouse when they meet the Waukesha All-Stars. Kimberly won over the All-Stars in their first meeting last spring and will have to cop this evening to win a series over one of the fastest teams in the state. If Waukesha wins a third game will be played there later.

The advance dope from Waukesha indicates that Kimberly will need its full squad to win. The All-Stars claim that the Papermaker victory last year was not exactly kosher because C. Robel, their star forward, was not in the game due to injuries. Also, the team was tired from being on the court during the tournament.

The Kimberly champs are practicing a new defense to compete with the All-Star's fast breaking shift. Keuper, formerly of White-water teachers, is very fast and has a dead eye for the hoop. He is the man Bowman and Norb. Gossens will watch Jamison, formerly a Wisconsin star, was a student of Doc. Meanwell and draws Joe Gossens as his opponent.

C. Robel of LaCrosse Teachers college will be introduced to Buck Leably, Klatt of Marquette draws Arvie Hofkins while Mahnke of La-Crosse teachers has Chub. Vanden Velden to guard.

Both teams will be at full strength and a fast game is expected. Tickets for the game are in demand with a large crowd expected. Many teams from around the valley have reported they will witness the tilt and pull for the A's.

Plan Tournament
Basketball teams from all over the state will meet at the clubhouse next spring when the sectional meet for the Hartford tournament will be played. The Kimberly champs will not take part in the meet but will play in the finals at Hartford.

A letter from Jesse Owens, world's fastest human, states that he would like to bring his colored squad for a return game. The Owens team liked the sportsmanship and the reception it received here last year.

At a banquet at the clubhouse last spring, the management of the Hartford tournament explained that the Kimberly champions received the largest ovation at Hartford given any team in the tournament.

The main game will get underway about 8:30 with the preliminary between the Kimberly 8 squad and St. Mary CYO of Menasha starting at 7:30.

Marquette Five Points for Win Over Wisconsin

Hilltoppers Work Behind Closed Doors; Auditorium Is Sold Out

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—A sellout of tickets for the Marquette-Wisconsin basketball game at the auditorium here Saturday was reported today as the Hilltoppers ran through their final drill behind closed doors.

Coach Bill Chandler of Marquette indicated he still was far from satisfied with the work of his regulars, particularly in passing. Shooting was better in practice last night than it has been in previous workouts, however.

The coach gave his men a long session against a reserve team, bolstered by two alumni, Paul Sokody and Frankie Zumach.

Chandler believes overconfidence helped beat the Marquette team in its first game with Wisconsin, 27 to 26. He is sure the team won't make the same mistake again of under-rating the Badgers.

BADGERS UNDERDOGS
Madison—(AP)—Still willing to accept an underdog role after three successive victories, Coach Harold Foster and his University of Wisconsin cagers expect to take a "licking" from Marquette in Milwaukee tomorrow night.

"Marquette should win, but we have a chance and the boys will be fighting all the way," said the Badger coach in much the same pessimistic mood with which he sized up the game here last week which Wisconsin won from the Hilltoppers 27 to 26.

Foster likes being the "underdog," and asserted he wouldn't attempt to "key" his squad for the game. The 15 players who will go to Milwaukee tomorrow will be given a light workout this afternoon. Foster has selected Andy Smith and Dave Dupee, forwards; Byron Bell, center; and Ernie Davis and John Rundell, guards, to start at Milwaukee.

Chicago May be Scene of Top Boxing Contest Soon

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Bees and Pirates may still do business on a trade, even though the baseball meetings are over. Latest is Al Todd to Boston for Ray Mueller, with other ivory tossed in.

The Cubs insist they'll start the season with Phil Cavarretta back on first base instead of Rip Collins. . . . But how about that tremendous .239 batting average Phil had last year? . . . The Cubs, incidentally, were willing to give the Cardinals just about everything but Wrigley field and Gabby Hartnett for Johnny Mize, Ducky Medwitt, Enos Slaughter and/or Don Padgett. . . . But Branch Rickey said strictly no-dice. . . . For which St. Louis fans should hand Branch a vote of thanks. . . . Now that the Red Sox-Tigers deal is settled, look for Brooklyn and Detroit to do some talking — and maybe acting.

One explanation is the Dodgers made $54 by trading Fred Frankhouse to the Bees for Joe Stripp. . . . Seems they'll only have to spend six bucks to bring Stripp from his Florida home to the spring training camp — but it takes $60 to get Fred down from Pennsylvania.

Haw. . . . Joe Triner, the Illinois boxing commissioner, is in town trying to interest Mike Jacobs in putting on a couple of indoor shows in Chicago before the season's over. . . . Mike may try to pair Henry Armstrong with Davey Day or Joe Louis with Bob Pastor there after New Year's. . . . Still stringing with the underdog, this corner likes Lon Nova to trip Tommy Farr tonight, despite this 7-5 odds. . . .

Toledo of the American association, and San Antonio, Oklahoma City and Tulsa from the Texas league will all train down in the lower Rio Grande fruit belt valley in Texas. . . . And several Texas loop outfits have their eye on the Texas Valley circuit for farm clubs.

Doc Parrshall, the year's No. 1 trotting horse driver, tabs his Peter Astra as the 39 Hambletonian winner. . . .

The national semi-pro baseball congress sent Monty Stratton a ball autographed: "Best wishes for a speedy recovery—from the 400,000 semi-pros." . . . With tomorrow's colyum, this corner goes on a two-week vacation (who's that over in the corner with a jealous look?) . . .

Seabiscuit Gets Maximum Weight

Down for 134 Pounds
Which Means He Probably Won't Show on Coast

Los Angeles—(AP)—The argument over how many pounds Seabiscuit should carry into the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap is getting to be an annual affair, but this year the bickering seems a little sharper than usual.

Weights for the big race march 4 were posted at Santa Anita today. They proved, if nothing else, that it takes only a pound or so to stir up a ton of controversy.

Seabiscuit, Charles S. Howard's stake king, was down for 134 pounds. That is five pounds over scale for a horse soon to be six years old, and apparently in the mind of Racing Secretary Webb Everett, who set the figure, a fair load for a horse that could pour it on the great War Admiral by four lengths.

Had Seabiscuit been given 132 or maybe 133, today's protests from his admirers would have been less loud. And had the weight been less than that, the roars from the anti-Seabiscuit faction would have been loudest of all.

Whether Howard will bring Seabiscuit west or send him to Florida remains to be seen. He made no comment on his plans, but observers here believe the Biscuit will go to Florida, where more suitable weights may be forthcoming.

Great Lakes Skating Tournament Canceled

Oconomowoc—(AP)—The Great Lakes open ice skating races, set for Jan. 28-29, were cancelled by directors of the Oconomowoc Sports club last night because of insufficient financial support.

Directors predicted the Olympic ice skating trials, now dated for Jan. 18-26, may be returned to the original dates of Jan. 19-29 because of the cancellation.

The Great Lakes will be replaced this season by an inter-city tournament Dec. 31, directors decided. Plans are to resume the major event next year, however.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES
Kaukauna at Menasha.
Neenah at Shawano.
New London at W. DePere.

Neenah—A squad of 21 basketball players will accompany Coach Ole Jorgensen and Assistant Coach Ivan Williams to Shawano tonight as the Rockets seek their fourth straight Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory as well as toppling the conference's defending champion.

Because of their three straight wins so far this season, the Rockets' stock has shot to a high peak, and the veteran Neenah squad is the slight favorite.

Coach Jorgensen indicated he will start his regular line-up tonight, assigning Robert Hackstock and Leo Peterson as forwards, Captain Dan Schmidt at center, and Warren Kettering and Harlan Hesselman at guards. Others who may see action will be Buxton Kettering, Blank, Muench, Erdmann and Krueger.

Coach Williams' second team also will be after its fourth conference victory, and the starting cast probably will be composed of Hauke, center; Calloway and Winkelman, forwards; and Miller and Douglas, guards. Others who will play are Bunker, Smith, Christofferson, Dieckhoff, Haas, and Hackstock.

William Reed, Shawano, the conference's leading scorer, will be the Rocket's Biggest problem tonight when they face the Indians. The chances are Coach Jorgensen will assign Schmidt to cover Reed, and Schmidt is the most likely candidate to successfully do the job. Gottschalk, Shawano's high pointer, also will have to be watched closely.

Elm Tree 40, Y. M. C. A. 26.
Merchants 24, Lutz Ice 23.

THE Town Taxi had their perfect record in the City-Y. M. C. A. basketball league, marked by a straight shooting hand of Wire Works players who took a 36-27 game last night in the Y gym.

Besides setting up a tough defense against McKeefer and Meyers, the Taxi threats, the Wire Works squad was definitely "on" in shooting. Zimmerman, Van Rybin, and Slattery had little trouble in penetrating the Taxi zone defense. The score was tied at the end of the first quarter, but in the next frame the Wire Works began pumping in buckets. Meyers, Zussman, and McKeefer played capable ball for the losers.

The Elm Tree cagers forged ahead in the final quarter to trounce the Y. M. C. A. 40-26 after three quarters of close play. Displaying a fast-breaking offense and strong defense, the Bakers counted 15 points in the last frame to their opponents' six. The win showed Elm Tree into first place in the league.

Cliff Burton paced the Bakers, hitting five field goals. Emmett Mortell, Philadelphia Eagles' half-back, appeared in a guard post for the winners. Wonsler and Kraus each collected seven points for the Elm Tree squad. Chuck Riley, Patrick, and Piper were the "X" stalwarts.

The Appleton Merchants wrested a thrilling victory from the Lutz Ice company by a 24-23 score. The game was fast, both teams mixing short breaks with occasional shots from the field. Greater alertness on rebound shots gave the Merchants the edge.

Wins U. W. 155-Pound Title; Sidney Blinder Is Outpointed

Madison — (P) — David Davis, of Livingston, won double honors last night in the University of Wisconsin tournament of contenders by decisively outpointing his opponent and winning the "best competitor" trophy before a crowd of 2,500.

The 135-pound boxer encountered stiff opposition from long-armed Paul Gendlinger, of Mineral Point, in the first round, but his consistent aggressiveness carried the last two rounds. The trophy, donated by a Madison business man, was awarded on the vote of three sports writers.

Verdway John, heavyweight of Wauwatosa, scored the only technical knockout of the nine bouts, winning over David Machtel, of Madison, in 1 minute, 33 seconds, although Machtel won on his feet when officials stopped them.

In special bouts, John O'Brien, of Rice Lake, outpointed James Martin, of Wauwatosa, and Omar Crocker, of Aurora, and Woodrow Swancut, of Wisconsin Rapids, battled evenly in a no-decision three round match.

Proceeds of the show went to the "Empty Stocking Club's" Christmas fund.

Other results:
120 — Martin Silverman, Oak Park, Ill., outpointed Sidney Blinder, Appleton.
127 — Lauron Chesley, Lena, outpointed Harold Liban, Milwaukee.
145 — Gene Rankin, Superior, outpointed Robert Lindsay, Madison.
155 — Robert Carnes, Appleton, outpointed James Vincent, Madison.

Tigers Appear to Have Gotten Most Out of Baseball Trades

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK — (P) — The baseball men have left this old trading post after three riotous days during which the conversation went round and round, and in calm retrospect today it looks like the Detroit Tigers did more good for themselves than any other club.

In landing third baseman Pinky Higgins, a proven star, in yesterday's major trade with the Boston Red Sox, the Tigers finally managed to board up their blind spot, a pronounced weakness at third base. Now all Manager Del Baker has to worry about is where to play Rudy York.

Neither the Boston Red Sox, who finished second in the junior loop, nor Cleveland, which staggered in third ahead of Detroit, appears to have benefitted materially from LITTLE CHUTE — In their first fictitious program of the season, St. John high pugilists staged an interesting card with a full house, to watch. Only one bout failed to go the limit, Smoky Van Boxtel stopping Hank Van Grinsven in the second on a technical K. O. The bout was stopped by Referee Dago Schuler with Van Grinsven having a bad cut over the left eye.

The best bout of the evening had Whitey Versteeg winning a slight edge over Kenny Hurst in a fast fight. Versteeg had the longer reach and also seemed a trifle faster. The ladies were evenly matched with the first and third rounds even and Versteeg gaining the edge in the second with a knockdown for no count.

The Van Boxtel-Van Grinsven go started off fast with both fighters wading into each other and slamming home some hard body blows. The second round had hardly started when Smoky clipped Van Grinsven with a hard left to the face and cut his eyebrow. The referee stopped the fight giving Van Boxtel a technical knockout.

Two newcomers to the ring, Joe De Groot and John Ver Bruggen, showed class and displayed skill while going the limit of three rounds. Ver Bruggen somedayed may be minus the tip of his tongue as he sticks it between his teeth every time he sets himself to uncork a haymaker. Ver Bruggen won the verdict with two rounds.

Two midgeets, Jimmy Hermesen and Carl Versteeg, staged a slam bang battle with Hermesen wading right in. Versteeg set him back on his heels with a hard uppercut but Hermesen kept on swinging. Versteeg would dance away and every so often take a healthy cut at Hermesen to pile up points and win the verdict.

Paul Lambers earned a berth by his showing on St. John high team. He sent Jackie Peeters to a hard punch to the chin, and coasted the rest of the way.

Gordy Hermesen and Bob St. Aubin stepped on it for three rounds with St. Aubin being a little more cagey. When Hermesen would start a punch St. Aubin would flip his left to Hermesen's face to beat him to the punch. Hermesen showed plenty of ability but lacked experience.

Shorty Jansen had plenty of opportunity to score in his match with Leo Vanden Heuvel but failed to follow up and Vanden Heuvel eked out a draw. Jansen slapped in a few soft blows with no power, but he had plenty of dynamite in his gloves.

Al Huismans copped his bout from Emery Mollen by backing Mollen around the ring. Mollen took a hard punch to the head in the second and Huismans worked on his opponent's mid-section in the third.

Quentin De Bruin opened up in the second round and landed enough blows to cop his fight with Jim Lenz after Lenz won the first round. De Bruin used a weaving style which baffled Lenz and countered with a left uppercut to score points.

Urban De Bruin shaded Joe Evers in their match. Evers took the first round with punches to De Bruin's head. The second round opened with Evers landing flush on De Bruin's nose to draw blood. Then De Bruin changed his style of attack using his left which Evers couldn't block and De Bruin picked up enough points to win.

E. Van Zoeland and H. Hinkens battled three rounds to a draw. Neither fighter got the upper hand although there was plenty of leather-slinging.

Joe Hinkens scored a win over Rich Huismans with Hinkens clipping Huismans with lefts to the face in the third. The first and second rounds were even.

Dago Schuler refereed the fights.

Carnegie Tech's Win Over Pitt Was Year's Big Upset

But National League Race Drew Most Votes of Sports Writers

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
NEW YORK — (P) — Carnegie Tech's football victory over Pittsburgh was ranked officially as the No. 1 upset of the 1938 sports season by the 70 sports experts participating in the Associated Press' eighth annual poll today, but analysis of the returns reveal the outcome of the heated National league pennant race actually was the biggest surprise.

This apparent paradox was brought about by the fact sports critics who mentioned the National league race approached it from two directions. One group suggested the Chicago Cubs' last finish was the biggest surprise. Another group took the position it was the collapse of the Pittsburgh Pirates which was most astonishing.

With points awarded on a 3-2-1 basis as each expert made three nominations to the "upset" list, Carnegie Tech's 20-10 triumph over Pitt was given a total of 551 points to top the list. Thirty-one points went to the Cubs for their pennant victory and 25 to the Pirates for their collapse. Combining the Cubs and Pirates' points would produce a total of 56 points, a half-point more than was credited to Carnegie Tech.

In the actual tabulation which ranks Carnegie Tech's feat at the top, Joe Louis' one-round knockout of Max Schmeling was rated as the next biggest surprise. Then followed the Cubs' pennant victory; Seabiscuit's victory over War Admiral in their match race; the Cincinnati Reds' fine showing in the National league race; the Pirates' collapse, and the Chicago Blackhawk's triumph in the Stanley cup hockey playoffs.

All told 54 surprises were mentioned in the balloting, with football contributing 19 and baseball 12. Boxing and golf followed with six each.

The tabulated results included:

First Points	Total Points
1. Carnegie football victory over Pitt	10 551
2. Louis' quick K. O. of Schmeling	9 36
3. Chicago Cubs' pennant victory	6 31
4. Seabiscuit's victory over War Admiral	5 30

Charities Need Money, Toys for 150 Yule Baskets

Chairman Asks for Prompt Action on Good Cheer Contributions

New London—At least 150 Christmas baskets, 25 more than last year will be required of the New London Associated Charities this year, according to the report of the check list committee.

Contributions and toy donations are coming in very slowly, according to Ormond W. Capener, general chairman, but the various gift, candy and food committees are busy at work. The annual contributions of organizations are being received by Thomas F. Fitzgerald, treasurer.

A plea for prompt remittance of cash contributions and the donations of old toys was issued this week by Chairman Capener. The Boys Vocational club at Lincoln school is without toys to paint or repair. About 20 dolls have been received and made presentable, girls of the grade schools making or laundering clothing for them, but many more items will be needed to fill out the 150 baskets.

Outgrown toys in good condition are preferred over those which apparently are beyond repair as little time remains. Robert Ullrich, assistant scoutmaster and a director of the Vocational club, will arrange for the collection of toys if he is notified. Material for boxes will be received until Friday night, Dec. 23, as deliveries will be made Saturday morning.

She is a freshman at Washington High school and her injuries were not considered serious by the attending physician.

The girl apparently was struck by the back of a truck driven by Charles Scheid as he was returning to his home on the Shawano road. Scheid said he was partly blinded by an approaching car as he prepared to make a right turn into his driveway and after he had stopped in the yard he heard cries from the roadside. Investigating, he said he found the Wainer girl sitting in the ditch, bruised, about 150 feet from the driveway. He took her into his home and called a physician. The girl had been walking on the right side of the road.

State's 'Problem Child,' Dry Squad, Gets Another New Boss

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — The naughty orphan among state capitol departments, the beverage tax collection agency, is once more under new direction. New boss of the division, and the other inspection services which have been consolidated under the title of "division of inspection and enforcement" is Lawrence C. Whittet, well known among the older generation of Republican politicians, and former advisor and secretary to Wisconsin's three term Governor E. L. Phillip.

Whittet this week assumed the supervision of a department which has been shunted from pillar to post according to the current direction of the political winds for half a dozen stormy years. And as he begins his new job, he hears rumors that the new Republican administration contemplates reorganizing and reorganizing the department once more.

LAWRENCE C. WHITTET Wields 'Big Stick'

Created in 1933 the beverage tax division was created with the repeal of the dry laws in 1933. Robert K. Henry was state treasurer, and Albert G. Schmedeman was governor. Both were Democrats, and the Democrats after a long political drought, were hungry for patronage. The beverage tax division furnished it, for four years, during two administrations of Mr. Henry.

In 1936 Sol Levinson made his successful comeback to the state treasury's office. Out went the faithful Democrats, or most of them, and in came the devoted Levitan Progressive followers. They stayed for two years until early this year, after much struggling and pulling, the LaFollette administration managed to cover the division under the civil service regulations.

At the same time other inspection agencies were merged with it, and the entire branch was given new management. George M. Keith was chosen by a board consisting of capitol department heads to be the new supervisor. For weeks he worked to organize the new division, remodeling the political appointees, replacing them with men who had qualified in civil service examinations. Through it all rang charges from some of the dismissed men of political favoritism by the LaFollette administration through the bureau of personnel, which gives the civil service tests.

Then two weeks ago, his division functioning at last, Keith decided to resign to return to his job as pension department supervisor.

At about the same time appeared rumblings from Republican legislative chieftains of decentralizing the agency once more.

Thus it can be hazarded, on the basis of its experience in a half dozen years of its existence, the division will not be a peaceful one for Mr. Whittet to handle.

State Speakers to Discuss Future of Wisconsin Dairying

Three of a series of 45 meetings to discuss the future of Wisconsin dairying will be held in Appleton and vicinity next week, according to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agent. Speakers from the state department of markets will attend the meetings and will present illustrations showing the state of dairy production, consumption, the competition that exists in the nation's markets for Wisconsin dairy products and some of the methods that might be used to increase dairy income.

One of the meetings will be at the Appleton Vocational school at 1 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon. A meeting will be held at the Black Creek auditorium at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Dec. 22, and at the New London city hall at 1:30 on the same afternoon.

Every farmer and his wife in the county interested in the betterment of the dairy industry, and particularly in respect to a quality program, has been urged by Agent Swanson to attend one of the meetings.

Distribute Soil Bags For Testing Samples

Soil testing bags for samples are being sent this week to farmers in Outagamie county by R. C. Swanson, agricultural agent. He has urged that samples be sent in this winter so as to avoid a rush in spring. A soil chemist, engaged under a WPA project, has started testing work in a laboratory set up in the basement of the courthouse. The samples also may be given to conservation committee men who will see that they reach the laboratory.

Lawrence College Men Express Some Very Definite Opinions About What Coeds Should Wear

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN
If there is one subject on which the Lawrence college male speaks with authority and real feeling it is the topic of girls' clothes. Half expecting that questions about ankle socks and nail polish and hoop skirts would be met with disgust or difference, or at most a condescending amusement, this reporter was surprised to find the men students at Lawrence college eager for a chance to express their views on the subject.

And they have definite views. To a man they approve of simple sport clothes for class wear and almost to a man they disapprove of such feminine frivolities as mascara and eyeshadow, even for formal evening wear.

There was one exception who condoned eye makeup at night. "You know, at night that stuff is kinda nice," said he. "Let them have some fun and doll up and play hard to get."

Faleide, Oak Park, Ill., basketball star and a Delta Tau Delta.

Show Good Taste
Conservative, and betraying remarkably good taste for all their youth and casualness, they don't like bright nail polish for daytime wear, they hate to see bare legs and they plead for well-groomed coiffures.

"I hate these sloppy babies," asserted one of them. And the sentiment was echoed by the whole group. Most of them have no objection to the white and brown flat-heeled saddle oxfords most of the college girls wear. Moreover, they don't mind much if they're dirty. That was the one concession they gave to "sloppiness." Most of them, too, like the colored ankle socks the girls wear beneath them, but there must, and they insist upon this strongly and unanimously, be long silk stockings beneath the socks. The very mention of bare legs in a classroom makes them grunt with disgust.

There was one dissenter in the chorus which favored ankle socks. His best girl probably wears them, so his name won't be divulged, but he thinks they make a girl's ankles look thick and he doesn't like them. Another of the men included mesh hose in his list of things he wished the co-eds wouldn't wear. "They look like mosquito netting," he said inlegantly. The others were more lenient, said mesh stockings were all right, but not many of the girls wore them anyway.

Differ on Scarfs
The question of peasant scarfs which the girls wear immigrant-style over their heads and tie under their chins, brought a varied response. "Phooey." "Depends on the girl." "A few of them look O. K." were some of the answers. Spencer Johnson came graciously to the ladies' defense with "I like them very much." Joe Maertzweiler also thought they were attractive on most college girls.

Another peasant style, that of the dirndl dress, was applauded by most of the men interviewed. One, however, said frankly that he didn't like them because their extreme fullness didn't follow a woman's natural lines. Whether he knows it or not, Elizabeth Hawes, one of America's leading fashion designers whose perennially good styles follow the lines of the human figure, agrees with him. In the matter of evening attire, they like strapless formal, but they still marvel at them. Their opinions about the new hoop skirts are divided. About half of them like them and the other half think they take up too much room on a dance floor. But when the skirt is full and hooped, the rest of the dress has to be simple. "None of this Stella Dallas stuff," John Donovan made it plain.

Like Plain Clothes
Another one said he would rather see a girl severely dressed than too much be-ruffled and be-frilled, and still another one expressed the same opinion when he said he liked plain, tailored clothes best.

And yet the same man declared he did not like a man-tailored sport shirt on a girl. Try to figure that out. Sweaters and skirts, they all agree, are definitely the proper classroom attire, and the girls, fortunately, seem to agree with them. Angora sweaters are pretty to look at, but don't girls, if you want to keep your man's devotion, wear one to a dance, even the very informal Friday night frolic.

"You have to spend the whole next morning trying to get the fuzz off your coat," said one of the boys, much vexed. Another one went so far as to say that a girl showed bad taste to wear such a sweater to a dance.

Except for the lone dissenter who didn't care if his girl wore mascara and earrings to a formal dance none of the boys liked bright nail polish. Most of them like natural polish, one of them didn't like any at all.

Approve of Lipstick
The lone dissenter also liked lipstick, and a lot of it, but he was not alone there. For all their stress on naturalness, most, but not all, of the boys had no objection at all to bright red lips. "Make-up properly applied is all right, but few girls know how," said one of the boys scathingly. "It's the same way with perfume. It should be applied very, very sparingly, but not many girls know that." They like the upswept coiffure on one or two girls, some of them admitted, but generally they were all against it. One of them knew definitely how he liked a girl's hair done. It should be brushed back from the forehead, end in casual curls and be of moderate length. Several of the boys said they noticed a girl's hair first of all and desisted the fact that so few of them were smoothly arranged. "They look as if they comb them with their fingers," said one of the junior class men. "That's what I like about the peasant scarfs. They hide their hair," said another.

And then the Hats
Questioned about hats, the reaction of these young collegians was the typically masculine one. "Those hats!"

But when it came right down to fine points, they couldn't find anything wrong with them except that the feathers this year were a little but too tall.

"They're always breaking on car doors, and when you're sitting behind one at a play, you have to keep shifting from side to side," they explained.

It might be well to mention here that college girls seldom wear really extreme hats. They choose the classic sports styles, and the boys really didn't have much to complain about there.

From all of which we gather that the college man doesn't like the tom-boy type, but he doesn't want them frilly either. He likes them natural, but he thinks they look as if they're going to faint if they don't wear a lipstick. At times it looks like a contradictory picture, but the average college girl pretty well meets all the requirements.

The New
LINCOLN ZEPHYR
V-12
STYLE LEADER FOR 1939

THIS "TWELVE" . . . THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND

Three years ago the Lincoln Motor Company announced a car new in idea, appearance and performance—the 12-cylinder Lincoln-Zephyr. The public had not seen an automobile like it before. . . The Lincoln-Zephyr for 1939 is still a new car. It is improved and refined. But the fundamental design which ushered in a new era of styling remains!

This year's Lincoln-Zephyr is more beautiful than ever before. Radiator grilles, set low, now sweep back vertically. Louvers are concealed. The sloping rear deck, keynote of Lincoln-Zephyr design, seems handsomer than ever. Here is the truly modern car!

But style alone does not make a motor car. What underlies the Lincoln-Zephyr's streamlined beauty? Many other distinctive features establish this decisively as a car apart . . . the brilliant performance, the trussed construction, the economy of operation.

For beneath this outward beauty, in all closed types, is a framework of steel trusses—the famous "arch-bridge" construction. Body and frame are a rigid unit combining lightness and great strength.

A 12-cylinder engine in any medium-price car is unusual. The Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder engine has established its own standards of power, smoothness, flexibility. Its amazing record of 14 to 18 miles per gallon will still be causing comment when 1939 is over!

This year, the Lincoln-Zephyr has hydraulic brakes. They offer smooth, gentle stops under all conditions. . . New this year, too, is the complete rubber-insulation of springs, axle assemblies and engine from the body-frame. Even greater quietness results in a car already quiet. . . Interiors have been redesigned. Many new refinements are in evidence. Seats, again, have chair-height comfort.

Today more than 60,000 enthusiastic people own the Lincoln-Zephyr. The car for 1939 will continue to bring new joy—to give value beyond its medium price. Six body types, including two convertibles, Sedan and Coupe.

BENEATH ITS OUTWARD BEAUTY

A combination of features that makes it the only car of its kind.
1. Unit-body-and-frame—steel panels welded to steel trusses.
2. V-type 12-cylinder engine—smooth, quiet power.
3. 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.
4. High power-to-weight ratio—low center of gravity.
5. Comfort for six—passengers "amidships"—high visibility.
6. Hydraulic brakes.

Kaukauna Squad Will Perform at Menasha Tonight

Coach Little Selects 11 Players for Conference Contest

Kaukauna—Eleven high school basketball players will leave for Menasha tonight to tackle the Bluejays in their third conference battle. It will be the first time the Kaws have played in the new Menasha High school gymnasium.

Those making the trip are Bill Alger, Carl Giordana, Don Bisek, Joe Bloch, Junior Swedberg, Bill Tessem, Paul Koch, Robert Dicus, Wilis Ranquette, Ken Busse and Jim Sanders. Ranquette, a freshman who started last year with the St. Mary's parochial school team, is the latest addition to the first string.

Coach Paul E. Little's starting lineup will have Bill Alger at center, Junior Swedberg and Carl Giordana at guard and Don Bisek and Joe Bloch at forward.

Hard work has been the rule for the Kaws this week as Little strives to overcome the faults shown last week against St. Mary's of Menasha. The cagers appeared to have regained their offensive eyes in the last couple workouts and on the big Menasha floor should give the Bluejays a real battle. A win would give the Kaws a two and one record and place them in the thick of the conference fight. Kaukauna has beaten West DePere and lost to Neenah. Menasha has played only one conference game, defeating Clintonville, 27 to 12, last week.

Veteran Team

Menasha has four veterans back from the team that trounced Kaukauna twice in conference play last year. Anderson and Landskron are leading the Bluejays in scoring. The last time the two teams met, however, in the district tournament here, the Kaws eked out a win.

A lot of attention has been devoted to free throw practice this week. The team percentage is less than 50 per cent, with the loss to Neenah due directly to this weakness.

The B team also will go to Menasha and play the Menasha B squad in a preliminary game at 7 o'clock. Kaukauna has yet to win a B game, losing to Neenah, West DePere and St. Mary's. With a large B squad, however, Coach B. D. Rice is aiming to give all players a chance to develop more than to win ball games.

John Buehrens Chosen As Vice President of Clintonville P. T. A.

Clintonville — John Buehrens was elected vice president of the Parent-Teacher association Wednesday evening to complete the unexpired term of Arthur Rice, who recently moved to Minneapolis. The association went on record as favoring the holding of the annual high school music festival in Clintonville next spring. Superintendent Harley J. The program included assembly singing of Christmas carols under the direction of Miss Edith Gray. The singing was accompanied by the high school orchestra, directed by Everett Goli. The orchestra also contributed two selections. A play to be presented by the Junior Dramatic club had to be cancelled because of the sudden illness of a member of the cast. # Menasha Aldermen Name Committee to Study Relief Work

O'Brien, Tuchscherer and Karrow Appointed to Continue Investigation

Menasha—A committee consisting of Aldermen Walter O'Brien, Reuben Tuchscherer and William Karrow was named by the Menasha council to continue the study of the relief problem following a committee of the whole meeting with the Menasha members of the Y. M. C. A. Menasha relief group Thursday night in the city hall.

The meeting was called at the request of Alderman O'Brien who previously has attacked the relief department, charging that the cost of administration is too high. O'Brien suggested that the city could save from $1,200 to $1,400 a year in administration by dissolving the joint office and administering relief from a Menasha office alone.

As the health officer already has to investigate some cases, O'Brien suggested that he could take over the job of investigating the relief cases. He suggested that the commission hire a new administrator at $90 per month plus $15 a month for mileage. The bookwork and reports could be taken care of by a girl who would work three days a month, according to O'Brien's plan.

O'Brien declared that Mr. Bojarski, Menasha case investigator, on a certain day made five calls, taking from an hour to one and one-quarter hours for each. He felt that a half hour was sufficient to decide if a person was in distress or not.

Compares Favorably

R. M. Sensesbrenner, president, and John Ryan, Menasha, members of the relief group, were present at the meeting. Mr. Sensesbrenner offered figures comparing the cost of administration per case in Menasha with Neenah, Oshkosh, Appleton, Green Bay and other cities of the valley. Menasha's cost per case was favorable in comparison with the other cities. So far this year the cost per case in Menasha for administration has been $70.72 while in Neenah it was $21.21, in Appleton $26.02 and in Green Bay $29.22.

A statement showing the various activities required of the relief department, WPA certifications, co-operation with old age, blind and dependent children's aid departments, HOLC, CCC work, commitments to insane and county homes, reports and many other activities, also was presented to the aldermen by Mr. Sensesbrenner.

Mr. Sensesbrenner pointed out that the department has only three people employed. He recommended Miss Bojarski as a good worker and Mayor W. H. Jensen also commended her work highly.

Mayor Jensen asked about the salary paid to Mr. Bishop as administrator. He was told that the books of the department are open to the aldermen at any time. The mayor also asked about persons getting relief who are not entitled to it. Mr. Sensesbrenner admitted that it might be possible for errors. The mayor also objected that no client should be able to receive abuse. Mr. Sensesbrenner asked that such reports be referred to the commission for investigation. He also pointed out that the relief department workers take a lot of abuse.

Reuben Tuchscherer agreed that complaints and requests for aid should be referred to the proper parties. He disagreed with O'Brien that $90 was a fair wage for an administrator pointing out that the men who work on the city garbage truck are paid more as is almost any man who is working steadily. He pointed out the huge quantities of bookwork necessary in the department.

The merits of a particular case were argued by the mayor and the aldermen. "It is easy to say 'yes' but hard to say 'no,'" Mr. Ryan commented. The mayor agreed that if a big-hearted man was installed as administrator the city would be broke by Jan. 1.

Alderman Scanlon gave examples of cases in which the stories told by applicants differed from what he found on investigation. He approved a thorough investigation of each case by the case worker before relief is granted. He suggested that the aldermen find out if the department is operating efficiently. He favored reduction of expenditures but suggested caution before any change is made.

Offer Suggestions

Alderman M. J. Grode questioned the value of the employment office and suggested that the $700 appropriated to assist in maintaining that office could be used for relief.

Alderman C. J. Oberweiser questioned whether a change might not result in a saving in administration cost but an increase in the cost of relief.

Mr. Sensesbrenner told the aldermen that the Twin City setup was adopted to take relief out of politics and to effect a saving in the cost of administration. He pointed out that he did not ask for the job as relief commissioner but had taken it in a civic spirit. He declared that he is vitally interested in the amount of taxes the workers must pay. The aldermen and mayor all agreed that the commission was doing its job well.

Thomas E. Talmadge, Chicago architect who drew the project plans, also will attend tonight's meeting.

Five bids were received on the general contract. In addition to the low bid of Fluor Brothers, they included Ben B. Ganther, Oshkosh, $115,363; C. R. Meyer and Sons, Oshkosh, $119,544; A. L. Jackson, Chicago, $127,000; and C. A. Klooster, Chicago, $132,354.

Two bids were received for landscaping of the grounds. None was received for miscellaneous equipment. The landscaping bids were $5,470 by White Elm Nursery, Hartland, Wis., and $5,750 by Robert J. Scholls, Oconomowoc.

The project originated with the donation of land and $50,000 by two Neenah philanthropists. Under the terms of the gift, the city of Neenah is to furnish $25,000 of the cost.

172 Million Gallons Of Sewage Is Pumped At Twin City Plant

Neenah—Volume of sewage through the Neenah-Menasha sewage disposal plant totaled 172,858,000 gallons during November, according to J. M. Holderby, superintendent of the plant.

The maximum pumpage for any one day during the month was 9,888,000 gallons while the minimum was 1,627,000 gallons. The extremes show a difference of over 8 million gallons. The extreme range is due to the large amount of industrial waste which must be handled at the plant, according to Mr. Holderby. The low point occurred on a Sunday when there was no industrial waste to be handled. The smallest amount of sewage ever handled at the Neenah-Menasha plant was 1,000,000 gallons. Two million gallons a day is an average figure for a community the size of Neenah-Menasha.

During the month 470,199 pounds of solids or about 235 tons were removed from the sewage. The solids were reduced from 737,510 gallons of sludge and scum. An average of 22,539 pounds of solidified sludge was burned each day.

Menasha—Leon Moran, 224 Second street, was fined $50 and costs on a drunken driving charge and had his driver's license revoked for one year by Justice of the Peace Ray J. Fink this morning after an automobile driven by Moran hit the police squad car when it was parked on Plank road at 9:45 Thursday night.

Moran was fined $50 and costs under the city ordinance and had his license revoked and was fined another $50 and costs under the state law. The fine under the state charge was remitted by Justice Fink on payment of costs.

The accident occurred when an automobile driven by Russell Walker, 609 Memorial drive, stalled on Plank road last night. Walker got some gasoline and was going to fill his tank when the squad car pulled up behind his automobile and Police Officers Peter Clark and Cyril Walburn got out to see if they could be of any assistance. # Judge Reis Rules On Old Dispute

Finds for Milwaukee County in Argument With Control Board

Madison—Circuit Judge Alvin C. Reis ruled today in a case involving a dispute between Milwaukee county and the state board of control that a person cannot establish or lose legal residence while confined to a state institution.

The decision, overruling an opinion given by the attorney general in 1934, relieved Milwaukee county of the entire cost incurred by the board of control in caring for John Moren, a minor, who resided at the Southern Wisconsin Colony and Training School from July 15, 1930, to August 21, 1934.

The board claimed the boy's father established legal residence in Milwaukee county after the youth was committed to the institution and that thereafter it also became responsible for the care of the entire family.

Milwaukee county's responsibility ended, the board conceded, with the death of the father on Dec. 8, 1931, and the subsequent removal of the mother to Minnesota. The boy also returned to Minnesota in 1934.

The board of control had ruled that Milwaukee county must pay the costs of the boy's care between the time of his commitment and his father's death.

Judge Reis said the question of liability involved had never before come before a Wisconsin court.

Hollywood—For an outstanding example of bad taste and selling under false pretense, I recommend an article in one of this month's fan magazines. Its title is "The Unmarried Husbands and Wives of Hollywood" and it is a fifty-fifty mixture of vicious innuendo and cowardly hedging. The writer hints at shocking immoralities on the part of some of our greatest stars and, at the same time, fairly crawls under his typewriter in the effort to escape any liability for his gossiping. Quite obviously, it is an attempt to pandering to the salacious side of Mr. and Mrs. Public's curiosity.

I don't believe in white-washing the moral peccadilloes of our few bad boys and girls—but neither do I believe that any Hollywood commentator has a special appointment from Providence to expose them. Certainly, some of our stars violate the moral code—just as some of the unpublicized citizens of Everytown do. Many of them are fools enough to flaunt their indiscretions and some studios are sap-phy enough to help them in their flag waving. But in spite of all that, it still isn't a magazine writer's business to capitalize on their private sins.

And I don't like innuendoes. If a magazine feels called upon to play reformer and expose Hollywood, why not have the courage to do a straight forward job of snitching? This business of hinting, is too obviously a business. It's too evident that the magazine was thinking about next month's studio advertising.

CUFF NOTES: It's a Florida loll and four weeks of deep sea fishing for Spencer Tracy on completion of "I Take This Woman" ... Snow and Ice
V-ICE ON THE OCEAN
 If we speak of ice on the ocean, our thoughts are apt to turn to icebergs, the great chunks of ice which float in ocean water.

The North Atlantic gets most of its icebergs from Greenland, where valley glaciers keep pushing into the sea until the ends break off. Northern parts of the Pacific are fed with icebergs by valley glaciers of Alaska.

The pictures we commonly see of icebergs show us only the parts above the water, but far the greater part of a berg is below the surface.

Close to nine-tenths of an iceberg is under water. If the berg floated in fresh water, even more of it (about ten-elevenths) would be out of sight. Fresh water does not weigh so much as the salt water in which icebergs float.

Although they float in salt water, icebergs are made up of frozen fresh water. They come from rain and snow which fall on the land.

Despite the fact that icebergs are mostly under water, they often are of great height above the surface. Some rise to heights of from 150 to 300 feet! Towering in the air like office buildings with from 12 to 25 stories, they float along whatever route currents may take them.

In the past icebergs have been a strong danger to ships crossing the Atlantic. They still are dangerous, but the world has not forgotten the lesson of the "Titanic," the great ocean liner which was sunk by an iceberg 26 years ago. More than 1,500 passengers and seamen lost their lives in that tragedy. Since then, far greater care has been taken to guard steamships against icebergs.

Salt water does not freeze so easily as fresh, but it does freeze in the frigid zones. Sea water at the surface must be three or four degrees below the freezing point of fresh water before ice can form, and even then it may be kept from freezing by waves.

As a rule the sea water freezes to a depth of less than 10 feet, but it can become scores of feet thick.

Pack ice is made up of pieces of broken ice-fields or ice - floes. Thousands, even hundreds of thousands, of pieces of ice may be jammed together by winds and currents, and the pieces may pile up one above the other. The final result is ice of great thickness.

Another cause of deep ice in the Arctic and Antarctic is falling of snow. Covering a sheet of floe ice, the snow weighs it down. This takes place year after year, and in time the snow turns into ice of a sort. At length the ice may become more than 100 feet thick.

Suggests Methods To Maintain Trade In South America

Stake Jobless to New Life In Latin Countries, Babson Says

BY ROGER BABSON
Knoxville, Tenn. — The howl down in Lima, Peru is a good thing. Leaders of the various Pan-American nations should get together and know each other. Such meetings, however, compare with the German "get-acquainted" methods in South America as a ladies' auxiliary tea compares with a CIO strike meeting. The truth is that the fascist penetration of Latin-America is far more effective than our easy-going American methods.

Every traveler who returns from South America has fresh illustrations of growing Nazi influence. Despite the Monroe Doctrine, the agents of Hitler and Mussolini are running circles around us. Outright barter, blocked markets, public subsidies, and price-cutting are just a few of the competitive handicaps our salesmen have to hurdle. The huge gains in trade which Hitler's clever business experts have chalked up are almost unbelievable—a 500 per cent increase in Central America alone in the last five years!

U. S. Is Hated
It is no secret that the United States, of all nations, is the most hated by the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis. Five years ago, 3,000 miles of ocean separated us from our "enemies"; five years from now only the width of the Panama canal may lie between us. While the fascists would not openly dare to build a naval or air base in this hemisphere, in reality they are doing something far more dangerous: They are cutting us out economically with the Latin-Americans. They are doing it by a clever program of penetration and propaganda. They are bombarding the continent with fascist broadcasts twenty-four hours a day. They control and color the news services.

Many of the newspapers are German-owned—15 in Brazil alone. There are 1,400 German schools in Brazil—all run on straight Nazi lines. They have about 40 landing fields in the same country. Their air-lines have brought Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires nearer Berlin than New York. Italian airmen train South American aviators. On the eve of the Lima conference, Japan completed a deal with Peru to buy 3,000 tons of cotton yearly in exchange for the lifting of Peruvian restrictions on Japanese textiles. A Lima-Tokyo telephone service will soon be installed. Through government-controlled trade, Germany and Japan sell manufactured goods in South America and often take their pay in oil or mining concessions.

"Heil" in Panama
The basic reason for fascist success in penetrating South America, however, is their immigration. Buenos Aires, for instance, is the second largest Italian city in the world. (New York is first.) The Japs are thick all along the west coast, while the Germans are the most numerous and influential foreigners on the South American continent. These Germans are loyal to Hitler. They rag the Jews. They use the same strong-arm methods in snatching trade as Der Fuehrer used in snatching Austria. The Nazi slogans and tub-thumping organizations have all been carried across the ocean. You only have to go as far south as Panama to hear marching bands shout "Heil".

How can we hold our own? First, our brand new navy will make a big impression. Herr Hitler knows the language of guns. So do all the little dictators who control the Latin American "republics". Second, our reciprocal trade agreements are helping even though they are not so effective as Germany's system of blocked marks and government barter. (Blocked marks can be used only in buying German-made goods.) Third, the new attitude of the Washington government—such as naming commercial steamships after Latin nations—will help. In addition there are other things we can do that are not being done.

Teach More Spanish
We can feature South America in our papers and schools. Our dailies and our text-books are filled with a lot of nonsense about

GETS NEW POST

Command of Important Schofield barracks in Hawaii has been assigned Maj. Gen. William H. Wilson of Boston, where he now commands First Corps Area. He sails Feb. 7.

Europe and scarcely anything about South America. We can teach more Spanish in our schools in place of French, German, and Latin. Nothing helps to create better feeling than to be able to speak another man's language. We can send high-grade representatives to the south. Many a sharp deal has been pulled down there by unscrupulous "Yankees". We can sell our best-quality products in South America. I am told that we have used it as a dumping ground for shoddy and second-hand machinery.

Finally, we can match Japanese, German, and Italian immigration with American immigration. We have 9,000,000 jobless—many of them driven out of the old dust bowl. They cost Uncle Sam an average of $500 each per year for welfare. Why not select some of the most ambitious of the unemployed and give them a year's relief check in advance as their stake to a new start in such countries as Bolivia, Argentina, and Brazil? These nations need more people of the American pioneer type.

Create New Frontier
At the same time we need a new frontier. Our unemployment problem and the filling up of our west are closely related. Recently we spent millions in trying to create a new frontier for the jobless up near the Arctic circle in Alaska. Why not send some of them to countries whose climate is as temperate as California's and whose fields are as fertile as Iowa's?

Bolivia, third largest South American nation, is actually soliciting colonists. Her people are so busy mining that they have no time to raise their food. I hear that she is offering 2,500 acres to every immigrant who will agree to farm. Additional land can be had for 21 cents per acre! By sending emigrants to Bolivia, we would reduce our jobless, cut our relief costs, and launch unfortunate human beings on a new life. At the same time, we would throw up a counter-buff to Nazi penetration on this crucial continent. I hope Washington will make the most of this opportunity!
